2 ROCKFORD FLIERS SAFE IN GREENLAND

BUCS WIN MORNING GAME, 16-1

ROCKFORD FLIERS SAFE IN ARCTIC

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The New York Times, in a copyrighted story from Mt. Evans, Greenland, this morning gave a complete account of the rescue of Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, Rockford, Ill.-to-Stockholm fliers.

The dispatch, sent to the Times by Prof. W. H. Hobbs, leader of the University of Michigan Greenland expedition, announced that members of Prof. Hobbs' party found the airmen, missing two weeks, after they disappeared en route from Cochrane, Ont., to Mt. Evans, on the second leg of their proposed flight.

Hassell and Cramer landed on the Sukkertoppen ice arm on Sunday, August 19, a few hours after their plane, the Greater Rockford, had been seen flying over Fiskenaesset, the dispatch says.

Point Sukkertoppen is a noted headland on the west coast of Greenland in latitude 65.22 north, longitude 53.6 west, about 50 miles southwest of Mt. Evans, and about 200 miles northwest of Fiskenaesset.

Men from the Hobbs expedition were sent to investigate signal smoke sent up, found the fliers across a fjord, 10 miles from the base, and returned with them to the Hobbs camp by motorboat.

GASOLINE GAVE OUT

The airplane is undamaged, the dispatch from Prof. Hobbs quotes Hassell as saying. The two fliers are in excellent condition, he reports, although for the last two weeks they have been traveling over the ice with a ration allowance of but eight ounces a day. They were forced to land when their gasoline supply gave out.

Discovery of the men was brought about, Prof. Hobbs said, when Eskimos reported to the Hobbs expedition they had seen smoke rising from a section of the island Prof. Hobbs knew to be unoccupied. Men were dispatched to watch for the smoke, which was not visible at the Hobbs camp, and the rescue followed.

The men arrived at the Hobbs camp at 9:15 last night, Greenland time.

SIGNALS FADED

After its take-off Saturday, August 18, the "Greater Rockford" was reported passing Rupert House, P. Q., at 1:54 p. m., Eastern Standard time; Eye Lake, P. Q., at 4:09, and Apiskigamish at 6:04 p. m. Thereafter no reports were received from hamlets or villages, but the faint messages of the plane's radio were reported occasionally until the last reported messages—one from Nipartolik Bay as the plane approached the 500-mile stretch of sea in Davis Strait and another indicating the plane was 75 miles off Cape Chidley—indicated the "Greater Rockford" was well on its way over the sea to Greenland.

After that no further word was received from or of the plane. When the "Greater Rockford" failed to appear at Mt. Evans fears for the safety of the fliers was felt.

Several times since the last message was reported from the plane, amateur radio operators reported that they had heard messages from the plane's radio, but these mes-

Flyers Found Unhurt in Greenland

After hope had virtually been abandoned by all but the most optimistic, Parker Cramer (left) and Bert J. Hassell (right), aviators, who disappeared while flying their airplane, "Greater Rockford," on a trip from Rockford, Ill., to Sweden, have been found uninjured and with their craft undamaged in a fiord in a lonesome part of Greenland.

LABOR DAY OBSERVED HERE

Community celebrations throughout the county marked the observance of Labor Day. Virtually all business was suspended throughout the day in the downtown district. All banks, stores and other business houses were closed. Taking advantage of the double holiday thousands of persons left the city Saturday and Sunday on motor trips.

The Pittsburgh Pirates were at home with games, scheduled morning and afternoon, with the Cubs at Forbes Field. There will be special matinees at all the theaters. There will be many important games among the local leagues as well as programs of other sports.

Etna firemen will hold an athletic program for children at the West Etna ball grounds this afternoon, marking the closing of the firemen's fair, which has been held for the last several days. Tonight the fair will close with the selection of five girls to represent the borough in the contest to select Miss Pittsburgh.

Automobile races will be held at four local tracks, namely Monongahela, Butler, New Kensington and Bridgeville. Auto races as well as

ILL LUCK PURSUED GREATER ROCKFORD

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 2.—(A.P.)—The Greater Rockford took off on its unsuccessful flight after a summer of ill luck which pursued it almost since it was received from the Stinson Detroit factory.

During a trial flight early in the summer, the plane landed in a cornfield in Iowa and was damaged so badly it had to be shipped to the Stinson Detroiter factory for repairs. On another flight to Memphis, Tenn., the ship was forced down because of lack of fuel.

Plans were finally completed for the takeoff on July 26. After a beautiful run, the Greater Rockford took the air and disappeared in the mist at the end of the flying field. Five minutes later another airplane returned to the field to tell the throng there that the Greater Rockford had been forced to land in a cornfield five miles away.

The plane again was damaged in the crash, but Bert Hassel, the pilot, and Parker Cramer, the navigator, escaped injury. The Greater Rockford was returned to the factory for repairs and two weeks later, August 16, it again hopped off, with Cochrane, Ont., its first destination. Its takeoff from Cochrane was delayed for two days by rain.

BIG TREND FOR SMITH SEEN BY ROOSEVELT

By FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Democratic candidate for Vice President in 1920 and a member of the executive committee of the Democratic National Committee.

(Copyright, 1928, by the New York American.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—History shows that the last week in August and the first week in September represent the silly season in political prophesy. In 1884 Mark Hanna thought that McKinley was hopelessly beaten at this same stage of the campaign. In 1904 Alton B. Parker at this stage thought he was elected, and Theodore Roosevelt was calling on Harriman to come to his assistance. In 1912 Woodrow Wilson thought that Theodore Roosevelt would beat him at this same stage of the game.

I am not going to repeat the errors of the past, either in claiming everything or in being despondent, with two months of the campaign ahead.

With this point of view in mind, it is necessary for any sane citizen to look askance at predictions of victory in any city, county or state in any part of the Union, whether these predicitions are made by Senator Moses or any other so-called practical politician.

Predictions Bunk

The last thing in the world that I would call myself is a practical politician, but I am at least honest enough to admit, not only to myself, but to the public, that any definite predictions about individual state at this time would be pure bunk. Furthermore, I am very much in favor, as is Gov. Smith, of taking the bunk out of politics.

Never since 1896 have there been as many cross currents in a presidential election as at the present time. These cross currents are not confined to any section of the country; they exist in the South and West as well as in the East. It may be worth while to analyze some of these cross currents.

One of the most significant is the ROCKFORD, Ills., Sept. 3.—Clarence E. Patrick, secretary of the Rockford Chamber of Commerce, and one of the backers of Bert Hassell's attempted Illinois-to-Sweden flight, announced today that he was in receipt of a message from Hassell saying he and Parker Cramer had been rescued and were safe at Mount Evans, Greenland.

Patrick said he could not make public the text of the message as it was telephoned from the Postal Telegraph office at Chicago, and he did not take it down verbatim.

He said, however, that the message was positive assurance of the safety of the pair. He said they had landed in an unexplored part of Greenland after losing their bearings and running out of fuel. The plane, according to the message, was undamaged.

Patrick said the fliers had been on "reduced rations" for many days, but that they had suffered no great discomfort and were in good physical condition. He said their rescue was effected by Eskimos who had seen their smoke signal from a distance.

The Eskimos, Patrick said, led the fliers to the camp of Prof. W. H. Hobbs, who is on an exploration tour in the Arctic for the University of Michigan.

ROCKFORD CELEBRATES

FORBES FIELD, Sept. 3.

INSTEAD of climbing poles, rolling over and performing other tricks at the order of their reputed superiors, those Cubs are clawing their detractors in an annoying manner.

For the third successive year, Boss Joe McCarthy, an outstanding man in the sport since he rose to a major league managership, has taken a club with second division paper form to first division field performance.

The Cubs of 1926 were in the race right to the last week and last season they had a flag chance as late as the last week when the Buccos measured them for four defeats.

At the present writing the Bears are the only serious threat to the league-leading Cardinals with the season within four weeks of the close.

Hazen Cuyler, after a very poor start, has made a game attempt to get up where he belongs as a batter.

Cuyler was down below .200 for a time in the spring, but he had gradually driven to a point around .280 and he is leading both leagues in stolen bases. He continues to be one of the game's best outfielders.

Fred Maguire, Clyde Beck and Woodie English are three-infield recruits who were regarded with serious doubt when they were started.

"How is a team going to stay in the race with three recruits in the infield," was the argument put out. Maguire, in particular, has been pleasing, his second base play being a feature of the team's activities. Beck also has conducted himself like a star, and Kid English should be a wonder when he gets his mature strength.

BUCS BEAT CUBS IN MORNING GAME

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

FORBES FIELD, Sept. 3.—The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Chicago Cubs in the morning game of their Labor Day program here today. The second game is scheduled for 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Pirates went into the battle without the services of George Grantham. Grantham is suffering with neuralgia, his absence causing Manager Bush to make a radical switch in his lineup. Paul Waner came in to first base, Comorsky moved to right field, and Lloyd Waner went back to center, Brickell taking up the left field task.

Charley Root started for the Cubs, but was driven from the mound in the second. The Pirates were in a hitting mood, getting six runs in the second and six more in the fourth. They added four more runs in the sixth.

Ervin Brame held the Bruins well in check, Cuyler's home run over the left field wall preventing him from scoring a shutout.

The game in detail:

FIRST INNING

CHICAGO—English flied to Comorosky. Bartell threw out Maguire. Heathcote fouled out to P. Waner.

PITTSBURGH—Adams fanned. L. Waner singled on the infield. P. Waner lined to Heathcote. Traynor forced L. Waner, Maguire to English. One hit.

SECOND INNING

CHICAGO—Wilson fanned. Bartell threw out Cuyler. Grimm fanned.

PITTSBURGH—Maguire threw out Brickell. Comorosky singled on the infiled and went to second on Grimm's wide throw to Root, who covered first. Bartell doubled to left, scoring Comorosky. Hargreaves fanned. Brame walked. Adams singled to the infield, filling the bases. L. Waner singled on the infield, scoring Bartell. P. Waner singled to right, scoring Brame and Adams, L. Waner taking third. P. Waner went to second on the throw to the plate. Tincup relieved Root. Traynor doubled to right, scoring the Waner boys. Brickell fouled out to Beck. Six runs, six hits, one error.

THIRD INNING

CHICAGO—Adams threw out Hartnett. Bartell threw out Beck. Brame threw out Tincup.

PITTSBURGH—Comorosky flied to Heathcote. English threw out Bartell. Beck threw out Hargreaves.

FOURTH INNING

CHICAGO—English singled on the infield. Maguire singled to left, English stopping at second. Heathcote fanned. Wilson grounded into a double play, Bartell to Adams to P. Waner. Two hits.

PITTSBURGH—Brame doubled to left. Adams grounded to English, who threw low to Beck in trying to stop Brame, Brame reaching third and Adams first. L. Waner singled to right, scoring Brame, Adams going to third. With P. Waner at bat, Hartnett had a passed ball, Adams scoring, L. Waner reaching second. P. Waner flied to Heathcote, L. Waner taking third on the sacrifice. English threw out Traynor, and held L. Waner. Brickell singled to left, scoring L. Waner. Comorosky singled to center, Brickell going to third. Bartell singled to right, scoring Brickell, Comorosky going to third. Bartell stole second while Tincup held the ball. Hargreaves singled to right, scoring Comorosky and Bartell. Bush relieved Tincup. Brame forced Hargreaves, Maguire to English. Six runs, six hits, one error.

FIFTH INNING

CHICAGO—Cuyler hit a home run over the left field fence. Grimm walked. Hartnett flied to Comorosky. Beck walked. Kelly batted for Bush. Kelly hit to center field, but Grimm thinking the ball might be caught, was forced at third, L. Waner to Adams to Traynor. Kelly reached first and Beck second on the forced play. English was thrown out by Bartell. One run, one hit.

PITTSBURGH—Holly went to the mound for the Cubs. Adams flied to Heathcote. Beck threw out L. Waner. P. Waner tripled to right. Traynor walked. On an attempted double steal, P. Waner was caught at the plate, Hartnett to Maguire to Hartnett. One hit.

SIXTH INNING

CHICAGO—Maguire was safe on Traynor's fumble. Heathcote flied to Comorosky. Brame threw out Wilson as Maguire advanced. Cuyler fanned. One error.

PITTSBURGH—Brickell flied to Cuyler. Comorosky singled off Holly's glove. Bartell singled to right, Comorosky going to third. Bartell going to second on the throw. Hemsley batted for Hargreaves. Hemsley beat out an infield tap, scoring Comorosky, Bartell taking third. Holly made a balk, Bartell scoring, Hemsley going to second. Brame fouled to Cuyler. Adams was hit by a pitched ball. L. Waner singled to center, scoring Hemsley, Adams taking third. P. Waner doubled to right, scoring Adams, L. Waner stopping at third. Beck threw out Traynor. Four runs, five hits.

SEVENTH INNING

CHICAGO—Hemsley now catching for the Pirates. Grimm flied to L. Waner. Hartnett doubled to right. Beck walked. Holly grounded into a double play, Adams to Bartell to P. Waner. One hit.

PITTSBURGH—Gonzales went in to catch for Chicago. Brickell lined to Cuyler. Comorosky popped to Maguire. Bartell was hit with a pitched ball. Hemsley forced Bartell. Maguire to English.

EIGHTH INNING

CHICAGO—Adams threw out English. Bartell threw out Maguire. Heathcote grounded to P. Waner.

PITTSBURGH—Brame flied to Wilson. Adams flied to Cuyler. English threw out L. Waner.

NINTH INNING

CHICAGO—Wilson singled to center. Cuyler forced Wilson, Traynor to Bartell. Grimm flied to Comorosky, and Cuyler was doubled, Comorosky to P. Waner to Bartell. One hit.

PITTSBURGH—Unplayed.

HOOVER 238 AHEAD OF SMITH IN STATE

Herbert Hoover has increased his lead over Gov. Alfred E. Smith by the latest returns in the straw vote poll conducted throughout Pennsylvania by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Sweeping majorities by Hoover in Philadelphia, in rural and in suburban communities have enabled the Republican candidate to spurt ahead of his rival. Totals for the state now give Hoover a lead over Smith of 238 with nearly 10,000 votes cast.

Hoover jumped into the lead with the previous day's returns, after Smith had held a slender margin for some days. The strength developed by Hoover among Philadelphia voters was the chief contributing factor in his overcoming the lead of Smith.

Philadelphia women have been returning votes recently in large numbers and the latest returns from women are but a few votes shy of the number from men.

Smith was a strong favorite in the first returns from Philadelphia, but Hoover has been making consistent gains in that city. The latest returns give Hoover 111 more votes in Philadelphia than Smith. Hoover continues to run strongly in the rural and suburban areas.

The totals to date in the Pennsylvania poll, conducted in connection with the nation-wide canvass by the Hearst papers, are: Hoover, 5,063, including 3,110 men and 1,953 women; Smith, 4,825 including 2,974 men and 1,851 women.

These voters in 1924 voted as follows: Coolidge, 8,557, including 4911 men and 3,646 women; Davis, 760, including 483 men and 277 women; LaFollette, 1,006.

RUM RING SLEW DAPPER, SLEUTH CLAIMS

THEY'RE OFF

The running races are always the prime attraction of the West Virginia State Fair at Wheeling. The crowds of the opening day know the ponies are "open for business" even if some of the attractions are slow about getting under way.

MINE EXPERTS

This crew of mine safety experts drew crowds interested in methods used in mine resuce work. These men know the "inside stuff" about battling mine disasters by entering gas and flame filled mines to rescue trapped miners.

THE FINISH

The crowds came to their feet as a group of horses bunched in the lead came down the stretch abreast. It looked like a close finish until one of the animals forged ahead an easy winner.

SPECTATORS

These fair misses proved to be real race fans. Their bets were all in fun though.

DAPPER SLAIN BY RUM RING, SLEUTH CLAIMS

Information believed to point toward the solution of the murder of Dr. Harry Dapper, Carrick physician, will be turned over today to Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park and County Detective Chief George Murren.

Roy Barclay, private detective, says he is in possession of information indicating that Dr. Dapper was slain by a hired gunman at the direction of a bootleg ring. This information Barclay will turn over to county officials today.

SEVERAL GIVE CLUES

Several persons questioned by Barclay have given him information which he believes is highly important. It is probable that the witnesses will be grilled today by Murren and Park who are very glad to test out the information uncovered by the private sleuth. Barclay is satisfied that he has found the motive for the murder.

A witness who probably will be questioned by the detectives is a man who was seated in the physician's waiting room at the time the murderer was asking the young doctor to accompany him on the death ride to Mifflin township. It is also very probable that the physician who attended the dying doctor in the Homestead Hospital will be questioned.

The plan of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern for a $5,000 reward to be offered by the county will be discussed tomorrow at a meeting of the commissioners. McGovern believes that if some incentive is created in the way of a reward, it might stimulate efforts for a solution of the crime. Some months ago he introduced a resolution asking that $5,000 reward be made a standing offer in murder cases, but no action was taken on the matter.

Photographs of the scene of the killing in Lebanon Church road, Mifflin township, were taken yesterday when another trip over the same route taken by the murderer was made by county detectives. With the sleuths working on the case was Chief Murren, who only a day or two ago returned from a vacation in Atlantic City.

KITTANNING MORNING TRAIN TO BE DROPPED

KITTANNING, Pa., Sept. 3.—Confirmation of the report prevalent that the Pennsylvania Railroad intends to drop the early morning train from this place to Pittsburgh came today. A letter received by Charles Moesta, president of the Chamber of Commerce, brought the information from the passenger division of the railroad. Poor patronage is given as the cause.

FORMER BODYGUARD OF ROOSEVELT DIES

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Stephen A. Connell, agent in charge of the St. Louis Bureau of the United States secret service and one-time bodyguard for President Theodore Roosevelt, died here early today of a complication of heart, kidney and liver trouble.

Dancer Takes Poison

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—A stage dancer was in a hospital last night in a critical condition from drinking poison, her estranged husband was under arrest and a salesman was in a hospital suffering from 10 knife wounds, the result of an altercation in the dancer's hotel room.

James Stark, the salesman, said Jack Tuchton, the dancer's husband, sprang at him with a penknife after he had objected to Tuchton's request for money from his wife, Ruth Tuchton, the dancer from whom Tuchton is separated.

Mrs. Tuchton, Stark told police, drank poison after she learned her husband notified police of the trouble, reporting that he had been assaulted and robbed.

Tuchton denied stabbing Stark, but was held in $1,500 bail on a charge of felonious assault. He said he was a member of a prominent Georgia family and that he and his wife had known Stark in Jacksonville, Fla., and other Southern cities.

CHARLEROI KILLING REMAINS MYSTERY

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 3.—A coroner's inquest failed to determine whether Mrs. Josephine Bono, 33, of Charleroi, fatally wounded herself or was shot by an unknown person. Angeline Bono, 17, her daughter, testified she and her mother had been alone in their home, that she had heard a shot and, hurrying to her mother's bedroom, found her on the floor with a bullet wound in the stomach.

BYRD EXPEDITION DOGS LEAVE CANADA FOR U. S.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Seventy-nine husky dogs, to be used by Commander Richard E. Byrd on his Antarctic expedition, were en route today by train for the United States naval supply base at Hampton Roads, Va., where they will be placed aboard the whaler, C. A. Larsen, sailing this month for the South Polar regions.

A special treadmill has been installed aboard the Larsen to enable the animals to get exercise during the voyage, as well as equipment to prevent their temperatures from rising dangerously in tropical waters. Every dog has been vaccinated against distemper.

With a special tractor the dogs will be used to draw supplies from the City of New York, the Larsen and the Eleanor Bowling to the base camp.

Arthur T. Walden, of Wonalancet, N. H., a veteran Alaska musher will be the head dog skipper. Ernest Freitag, whose father was the first man to reach the Bremen crew at Greenly Island, accompanied the dogs here.

HASSELL, CRAMER SAFE IN GREENLAND

REPORTED SEEN

Apparently Hassell and Cramer had been forced off their course by adverse weather when they attempted to fly from Cochrane, Ontario, to Mount Evans, a distance of 1,600 miles, on the second leg of their flight.

Hopping off from Cochrane in their monoplane Greater Rockford at 12:12 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, on August 18, the airmen were sighted over Fiskenaesset about 200 miles south of Point Skuppertoppen at 10:30 a. m., the next morning.

News of their sighting over Fiskenaesset was not received, however, until August 23, when the Danish government made public a report from the Greenland administration announcing the receipt of a message from the sheriff of South Greenland, saying the plane had been sighted.

The sheriff stated that two motor boats would be sent out immediately to search for the fliers. Prof. Hobbs organized land searching parties for the airmen. The United States coast guard cutter Marion and the Danish costal vessel Islandfalk also took up the search.

The expedition led by Prof. Hobbs is engaged in experimental work by which it is hoped to establish a system for forecasting Atlantic weather by measuring the force and direction of gales which blow from the Arctic. Hassell carried instructions for meterological observations and was to have worked with the Hobbs expedition

NEWS FLASHED SWIFTLY

Two minutes after they had set foot on solid ground word that they were safe and well had been flashed by wireless into the office of the New York Times. Flashlight signals from the rescue party gave word of the rescue to watchers at the radio station at Mount Evans.

In New York, Dick Hilferty, one of the Times operators, suddenly heard the radio crackle: "Urgent, urgent, 2UO." "2-UO" are the call letters of the New York Times station. The call came from Operator Baer of the Mount Evans station and word of the rescue followed.

CLUE TO ITALIA CREW?

A hint that another Arctic mystery might be cleared up was seen in an Associated Press dispatch from Copenhagen today. It said advices from Tromsoe, Norway, were that the Jopetter, a hunting vessel of Aalesund, Norway, saw a fire on Stone Foreland, the eastern extremity of Edge Island, a fortnight ago. Edge Island is the southeast member of the Spitzbergen Archipelago.

The crew believed the fire was connected with the missing group of the dirigible Italia. Six men were carried off to the east in the balloon part of the dirigible after it crashed on the ice north of Northeast Land on May 25. They have not been heard of since. It appeared probable that the balloon might have carried them toward the point at which the fire was seen.

The crew of the vessel attempted to go ashore to the spot where the fire was seen but were prevented from doing so by ice.

CITY LOCKS UP FOR HOLIDAY

balloon races will be staged at Altoona. The three aviation fields have prepared to carry a record crowd of passengers. Parachute jumps will be made at Mayer Field, Bridgeville.

Two gatherings of coal miners are scheduled for today, the only large labor demonstrations in this district. Members of the various locals of District No. 5 of the United Mine Workers of America are scheduled to participate in a labor day celebration at Bridgeville. It is expected that about 20,000 persons will be present. Labor leaders will be the speakers.

Another gathering of miners will be held at Wildwood Grove at Wildwood. This meeting is under the auspices of the "Save the Union" group.

Bulbs Used 23 Years Sent Edison

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 3.—For 23 years two 200-watt electric light bulbs have been in constant use in the display window of John Griffith, South Broad street. Today one of them burned out. The bulbs were so old that the manufacturers name could not be found upon them. Claiming the record for long-burning electric globes, Griffith is shipping the bulbs to Thomas A. Edison.

Footpads' Attack Fatal

Believed to have been the victim of footpads, Boniface Naciowski, 45, of Cherry way, Braddock, was found fatally injured at Eleventh street and Washington avenue, Braddock, early this morning. His head crushed by heavy blows of a blunt instrument, the victim died a short time after being admitted to the Braddock General Hospital.

County detectives and Braddock police who were notified of the case are of the opinion that the man was attacked and beaten by highwaymen, although as far as can be learned there is nothing missing from his clothing. The body was removed to the morgue.

J. F. MORAN, FORMER OIL CITY MAN, DIES

TIONESTA, Pa., Sept. 3.—Old-time rivermen and oil men from this section regret the passing of John F. Moran, 78, whose death occurred a few days ago at Frederick, Md. Moran was born in Oil City in 1850, and for many years conducted the Moran House, a popular hostelry for oil men and rivermen of the oil excitement days.

SMOKE REVIVES HOPE FOR 6 OF ITALIA CREW

International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—The six members of the Nobile Polar Expedition, known as the Alessandri group, who were carried away with the envelope of the Italia, are believed to be alive upon an island in the Arctic, according to word received from Tromsoe today.

Advices from that place state that the Danish tankship Jopetter sighted smoke and fire on the edge of an island near Stone Foreland a fortnight ago.

The captain of the tankship said he had no doubt that the fire was set by members of the Alessandri group, who had evidently landed in that region.

The tankship was unable to land at the island owing to weather conditions and thick ice floes.

The Allesandri group has been missing since the Italia disaster on May 25. Gen. Nobile himself said that the Italia was in flames when last seen, but this was evidently an error if the men are really safe.

FLIERS UNHURT BUT HUNGRY

up to such whole-hearter rejoicing.

First news of the rescue was received in Rockford over the radio It was flashed at 10 p. m., just as many citizens were preparing to retire. A simultaneous bomb explosion under every home could not have sent more people into the street in less time.

Thousands of joy crazed citizens, many of them hatless and coatless, swarmed into the business district, shouting and honking automobile horns and sirens. Impromptu parades streamed up and down the streets.

Panics among late audiences at theaters were narrowly averted when the news was flashed upon the screens. Patrons immediately bolted the shows to join the milling throngs in the streets.

Bonfires were lighted all over town, and extra police were hurriedly sworn in to keep order and prevent property damage.

At the palatial home of Mrs. Elizabeth Hassell, mother of the Greater Rockford's pilot, lights that had been dimmed for the night, suddenly flashed from every window as a telephone message brought the joyous news.

Mrs. Bert Hassell, who had just tucked her two small sons and infant daughter in bed, was summoned to the downtown district where she appeared before thousands gathered there and received a tremendous ovation.

SIRENS SHRIEK

Factory whistles shrieked the message throughout the city and boats on the river added their quota to the din that rocked the quiet Sunday night.

Police were unable to cope with the traffic as the night wore on and late comers swelled the midnight celebration.

Mrs. Hassell, hysterical with joy, sent a message to her husband as soon as she was informed of his safety, telling of her joy and giving her encouragement.

"I can't go to Greenland, and I'm not sure that Bert will come home," she said. "But if he wants to continue his flight to Sweden I'll cheer him on. His plane was in good condition.

"The others gave up all hope, but I couldn't," she said. "I clung to the one final slender thread, feeling that some way and somehow my husband would pull through. But in the last few days that was beginning to leave me."

"The last words Bert said to me before he left were:

"Don't worry. We may be forced down and lost a few weeks, but we'll be found. Don't worry."

JOHN COOLIDGE LEAVES HOME TO LOOK FOR JOB

International News Service.

SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 3.—John Coolidge left the summer White House here today to find himself a job. Of age, and graduated from college, he is striking out for himself. The middle of the week will find him in the East, launching his career. His last vacation as the son of a President is over.

John spent his last day with his mother and father quietly. He and of the young man. From there he plans to go to Hartford, Conn. At the latter town he will see Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut, and freely rumored as his fiancee and imminent bride.

In New York John will look over a number of very attractive offers. He has been urged to go to work for the J. P. Morgan firm, for a large eastern railroad, for several banks and brokerage houses, and even in a new Broadway musical revue.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge attended church as usual at the little frame Congregational church at Brule, six mile from Cedar Island Lodge. His mother seemed most conscious of the imminent parting for after the services she stopped to discuss with John Taylor, the blind lay pastor of the tiny community. Taylor wished John Godspeed, and gave him his blessing.

The President had no particular plans for observing Labor Day. No speech was scheduled, nor was any trip away from the Brule contemplated.

A Warning for Motorists -:- "Be Careful"—Marshall -:- Schools Open Tuesday

BE CAREFUL!

Schools open Tuesday! And that means thousands of youngsters crossing traffic-laden streets. Which is why Traffic Inspector Ben R. Marshall today advised motorists to be especially careful. Traffic patrolmen were advised to take extra pains—which is just what Patrolman J. J. ("Sully") Sullivan and a colleague are doing for these three maids.

IN SAFE HANDS

This picture portrays Patrolmen Keller and Schaefer escorting a group of youngsters across the street in utmost safety. There's no danger involved under these circumstances. But we don't have cornermen at each corner. So Inspector Marshall urges the younger generation to look to the right and left.

BELIEVE IN SIGNS!

If you've ever driven, be it an humble 1912 horseless buggy or a 1929 super six, you've seen those signs which advise you, much more tersely than this paragraph, to slow down near a school. That warning is herewith illustrated for you. This sign was inspired by the nearby Taylor Allderdice High School.

ANOTHER "DON'T"

Playing in the streets isn't the safest recreation in this small world for young men, even if the plaything happens to be a home-made super six. To emphasize the danger, three Beechwood boulevard boys posed for this picture with Patrolman Schaefer. The boys are Joseph Esposito, the pilot; Melvin Young and Billy Esposito. And they want you to understand distinctly they posed for this picture.

FRENCH AIR MINISTER CRASHES TO DEATH

"Lady Lindy" Leaves :-: In New Plane :-: After Mishap Here

POISED TO GO

Amelia Earhart, who spanned the Atlantic, but damaged her plane when she landed at Rodgers Field ready to resume her tour.

GOODBYE

Despite her accident here, Miss Earhart left Pittsburgh with a smile. Both she and her flying companion, Publisher George Palmer Putnam, accepted their mishaps as part of the game.

THE NEW PLANE

THE ONCEOVER

As soon as the new plane arrived, Miss Earhart inspected it from propellor to tail and then made a series of test flights before she resumed her journey.

HOW IT HAPPENED

Lady Lindy is describing just how the accident to her plane occurred. With her are Pilot White, Robert H. Hancock, of Rodgers Field, who accompanied her on test flights of the new plane, and Mr. Putnam.

FRENCH AIR MINISTER DIES IN PLANE CRASH

PARIS, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—A sudden nose dive of an airplane and its crash in flames have robbed France of her youngest cabinet member, Maurice Bokanowski, Minister of Commerce and Aviation.

Four others, Gabriel Hanin, pilot; Jean Vidal, mechanic; Henri Willins, radio operator, and Edouard Lefranc, general secretary of airplane company, also perished in the crash near Toul.

Just previous to boarding the plane, Bokanowski, while chatting with Gen. Du Perray and Capt. Houbert, said "newspapermen insinuate that I never fly, that I take all possible precautions even when I approach a plane standing still. You see," he continued as he jumped into the cabin of the plane, "an airplane trip has no terrors for me." Five minutes later he was dead.

WITH POINCARE

Bokanowski spent Saturday at the country house of Premier Poincare in Campigny at an informal meeting of the cabinet, celebrating the Premier's sixty-eighth birthday and the second anniversary of the formation of the national union cabinet. Sunday morning he went to an aviation field 25 miles away and took his place in a plane ordered from Le Bourget.

The machine, a Spad biplane, took off laboriously with its motor coughing. It rapidly gained altitude and headed for Clermont-Ferrand where Bokanowski was to attend an aviation festival. Capt. Houbert, who was escorting the Minister's plane in a military machine, noted the Spad suddenly veer to the right when about 1,500 feet aloft and go into a nosedive.

It took two hours to extricate the bodies from the wreckage and Bokanowski's was identified only by a platinum watch.

Premier Poincare is expected to decree that the minister died "in the performance of ministerial duty."

Albert Sarraut, minister of the interior, went to Campigny and gave the news to Mme. Bokanowski just as she was approaching the ninth green in a round of golf.

Bokanowski's 79-year-old mother, who was taking the cure at Vichy, said, when informed of the crash:

"He died like a soldier at his post. The war failed to take his life although he did not fail to risk it."

Bokanowski's war record included four citations. He was decorated with the Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre. In 1916 while aboard the steamship Provence en route to Salonika the ship was torpedoed and he swam for half an hour before he found a raft. He kept afloat on this for 10 hours before being rescued.

Bokanowski was 49 years old. He was appointed Minister of Commerce and Aviation in 1926. He visited the United States last year, attending the sessions of the American Bar Association in Buffalo.

3 STABBED IN FREE-FOR-ALL

Three Negroes were taken to the Montefiore Hospital by Center avenue police yesterday, suffering deep knife wounds as a result of a battle which is said to have started in the hotel of Ward Galloway, 43, of 2341 Wylie avenue.

Normal Bunch, 35, "no home," was stabbed in the left lung. Sidney Lewis, 28, of 608 Perry street, required 12 stitches for his right hand, and Jerry Clayton, 23, of Penn township, needed 20 stitches for his head. Lieut. Thomas Gross and squad searched the hostelry and reported finding a clearing house lottery. He arrested Calloway along with four men and a woman. Calloway was charged with keeping a disorderly house. Lewis and Clayton were cut by Bunch, police say. After treatment they, too, were arrested.

SHIP LAUNCHES PLANE AGAIN

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Another experiment in the ship-to-shore air mail service was under way today with this city awaiting the arrival of a seaplane which early today took off from the French liner Ile de France.

The seaplane, carrying mail for the United States, was catapulted from the liner off Cape Race, Newfoundland, about 400 miles northeast of here.

After refuelling at the air station here the plane will take off for Boston, Mass.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1928

N. Y. Chiefs Assure Smith

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 3.—With a busy week ahead of him, Gov. Al Smith rested at the executive mansion today with only a game of golf and an automobile ride on his holiday program.

The Governor plans to go to the Capital tomorrow and confer with members of his cabinet and dispose of state business which has accumulated during the last 10 days. Later in the week he expects to announce the itinerary for his first campaign trip through the West.

While Smith always has been certain that he would carry New York State in the coming election, he was much pleased with reports sent to him during the last few days by Democratic leaders from all parts of the state. These reports, according to the Governor's close friends, assured him that there was as strong sentiment for him throughout the state, as a presidential candidate, as there was when he was a gubernatorial candidate.

Smith is said to be counting on a plurality of well over half a million in New York City, and he is confident that he will run better up state than ever.

Despite the Governor's optimism, it was reported today that a wealthy cattle man of Boise, Idaho, stopped off in Albany on his way from Saratoga, where he had been attending the races, and laid a bet of $20,000 at three to two that Smith would not carry New York State. Seven Albany Democrats are understood to have put up the money to cover the cattle man's wager.

SLAVS OPPOSE ZOGU AS ALBANIAN KING

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The Jugoslavian foreign office informed the Associated Press today that its government will protest the election of Ahmed Bey Zogu as king of Albania. It was said, however, no official action would be taken until official notification has been received.

SPENDS DAY WITH MOTHER

TIRANA, Albania, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—While Christian churches and Moslem mosques alike prayed today for his success as the ruler of the newly-created kingdom of Albania, Ahmed Bey Zogu spent his first day as king quietly with his venerable mother, who under the revised Constitution becomes the country's dowager queen.

Throwing aside the conventional civilian garb, he wore as president of the republic, the 34-year-old commoner donned the uniform of the commander-in-chief of the army as a more appropriate dress for his exalted position of King. In this splendid attire he received the homage of his subjects and heard the address to royalty, "Your Majesty."

As he sat beside his proud mother—who is "Her Royal Highness"—in her humble cottage adjoining Tirana's "White House," Ahmed Bey Zogu, who, like the new Shah of Persia, rose almost from the status of plebeian to the position of potentate, was a striking figure of youth and aggression.

Meanwhile, in foreign diplomatic quarters here, it is feared the question of Zogu's coronation may be complicated by his acceptance of the title of "King of All the Albanians." Certain European countries, particularly Jugo-Slavia and Greece, which have large Albanian populations, are unwilling to recognize Zogu by that broad title.

U. S. RECOGNITION

In British and French diplomatic quarters the Associated Press was informed that the great powers will give the question of the kingdom the most careful consideration. It is not expected, however, that there will be any obstacle to full American recognition, provided the new regime honors the old republic agreement with the United States.

The first official act of Zogu was the liberation of 2,000 prisoners from the country's cells. This the youthful monarch followed by an order for bonuses of a month's salary to all state employes, and the promomotion of six colonels of the army to generals.

M. Kosra, a member of the present Albanian cabinet, was intrusted with the formation of the first cabinet under the newly-established kingdom. Kosra's designation is not expected to meet with much sympathy.

U. S. PLANES TO VISIT CANADA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—American Army and National Guard fliers will make a friendly invasion of Canada this week with the Canadian national exhibition at Toronto as their objective.

The War Department announced authorization for the One Hundred and Twelfth Squadron of the Ohio National Guard to visit the exhibition and at least 18 planes of the Air Corps' first pursuit group will fly from Selfridge Field, Mich., to Toronto to be the guests of the exhibition on Tuesday. The pursuit group goes in response to an invitation from the exhibition tendered through the Canadian Minister through the State Department and formally accepted by the Secretary of War.

"BABY" PLANE SETS ENDURANCE RECORD

PARIS, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Aviator Maurice Finat, piloting a "Baby Avionett" of 40 horsepower, broke the world endurance record for small planes by remaining aloft 24 hours 36 minutes and 33 seconds. The former record of 24 hours flat was held by Captain Broad, of England.

Wealthy Merchant Suicide

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Charles K. Eagles, wealthy silk merchant and sportsman, was found dead yesterday with a bullet wound in his left temple in the gymnasium of his beautiful Penthouse villa on the roof of an upper West Side apartment house he owned and had built. Police said he had committed suicide.

Beside the body lay a double-barreled rifle which folded and could be used like a revolver. From his physician it was learned that he had been suffering from insomnia for several weeks, and police believed the long protracted illness of his wife also might have been a contributory cause of his suicide. Mr. Eagles had suffered no financial reverses so far as could be established today.

Mrs. Eagles told police she last saw her husband alive Saturday night when he went into her room to say good night. She said he told her not to worry about her own condition and gave no indication that he was troubled about his own.

His body was found by Mrs. Eagles' nurse who sought him when he failed to appear for breakfast.

The apartment in which Mr. Eagles' body was found is one of the most beautiful in the city. Mr. Eagles owned a ranch in Wyoming and had traveled in various parts of the United States on hunting and fishing trips. He was 51 years old, the head of C. K. Eagles & Co., which operated silk mills in Pennsylvania.

Paper to Close a Week as All Take Vacation

SANDY LAKE, Pa., Sept. 3.—The current issue of the Sandy Lake Breeze prints the following notice:

"The Breeze office will be closed from September 9 to 16 in order that the force may enjoy a week's vacation. The vacation will include the entire force—editor and publisher, compositors, foreman, pressman, bookkeeper, business manager, devil and janitor.

"And no paper will be issued the week of September 9.

SMOKE FELLS 114 IN SUBWAY PANIC

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Three persons are in a hospital here today following a subway fire in which 114 passengers were overcome by smoke. Forty-three of the 114 were treated at hospitals for smoke inhalation or shock. All but three were sent home.

The fire started when a contact shoe on a five-car Interborough train broke, fouling with the third rail and causing a short circuit that extinguished all lights in the train except a few lights operated from batteries. The passengers, mindful of the recent Interborough subway wreck, which caused the death of 16 persons, became panic-stricken as the cars filled with smoke. There was a mad rush for the exits.

Police, hearing of the accident, rushed to an emergency exit of the tunnel and by forming a human chain passed the hysterical passengers from officer to officer through the smoke-filled tunnel until they were aided up a ladder and out of the tunnel through the emergency exit.

Ninety-four of the passengers were attended by hospital physicians in a nearby subway station and 20 more were revived by the pulmotor squad.

1 Dead, 1 Shot in Quarrel

Frank Sesto, 27, of 106 Elm street, died last night at Mercy Hospital from a gun shot wound, said by police to have been inflicted by Tony Sicilino, 39, of 1306 Colwell street. The shooting occurred Saturday night in front of the store of John Mate, at 83 Logan street. Mrs. Mary Mate, 35, wife of the proprietor, also shot, is in a critical condition at Mercy Hospital.

Business rivalry was blamed by police for the shooting. According to the story told by Mrs. Mate's daughter, Sarah, 17, a sale in the Mate store was interfered with by Sicilino's daughter, Josephine, 20. Mrs. Mate ordered the girl to leave the store, police were told.

A short time later, police alleged Sicilino approached and opened fire with a revolver. Sicilino then commandeered an automobile, rode to the police station and surrendered, turning over the revolver.

W. VA. TO FIGHT BEETLE WITH QUARANTINE LAW

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 3.—The Japanese beetle has been found in the Hagerstown and Frederick sections in Maryland and a new quarantine will be established to prevent its spread into West Virginia.

GIRL SLASHED, NEGRO HUNTED

Slashed by a Negro who seized her on the grounds of the Protestant Orphan Asylum of Pittsburgh and Allegheny, in Perrysville avenue, Miss Nana Berkley, 23, is in Allegheny General Hospital in a serious condition. Police launched a search immediately for the attacker.

Miss Berkley, a caretaker, was returning to the asylum after a visit to a sister in Braddock Saturday night. She had left a street car at Perrysville avenue and Riversity street, and was entering the grounds when the Negro pounced upon her.

The girl struggled, and had almost broken free when cut. Neighbors, attracted by her screams, came to her aid. The Negro released her and fled.

Nab Negro Women In Gun Duel, Police Say

"Send over your flying squadron I've read so much about to Linton and Roberts streets," shouted an excited Negro woman to Sergt. Joseph Yeake at Center Avenue Police Station, yesterday. The squad found two Negro women engaged in a gun duel. Vivian Taylor, 22, of 1807 Linton street, had fired a wild shot and Emma Sprot, 26, of 1827 Linton street, police said, had tried to return the fire with her pistol which failed to explode. Both women and guns were taken to the police station.

SHIP'S SURGEON SAVES STOKER'S LIFE AT SEA

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The story of a delicate surgical operation at sea, after the patient had been transferred in a lifeboat from a tanker to the sick bay of the steamer Transylvania was told by the steamer's surgeon when the vessel docked here.

Dr. William C. Borrie, who performed the operation, said the Transylvania received a radio message from the tanker Perseo Thursday morning that a stoker had clashed his arm, severing an artery and a vein.

The Transylvania veered toward the tanker's course and the stoker was put aboard the steamer in serious condition. Enlisting the aid of Dr. Agnes P. McGavin, of Nyack, N. Y., and Miss Mary Medlock, a Chicago nurse, Dr. Borrie rejoined the severed artery and the slashed vein. The operation required an hour and a half, but despite its success, Dr. Borrie said, the stoker's arm may have to be amputated.

The patient was brought to New York aboard the Transylvania and taken to a hospital here.

SAXAPHONE PLAYER NIPS HOLDUP AT ROADHOUSE

International News Service.

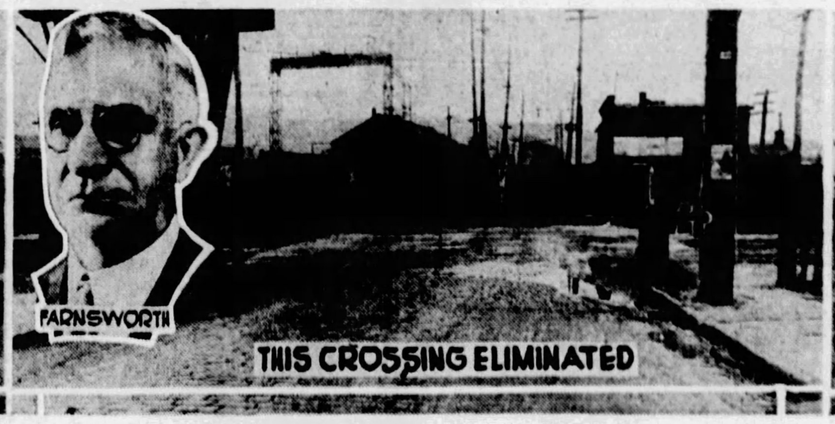
CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—A saxophone player with a knack for handling firearms was being commended today for frustrating a wholesale robbery at Picadilly Gardens, a roadhouse near here, yesterday.

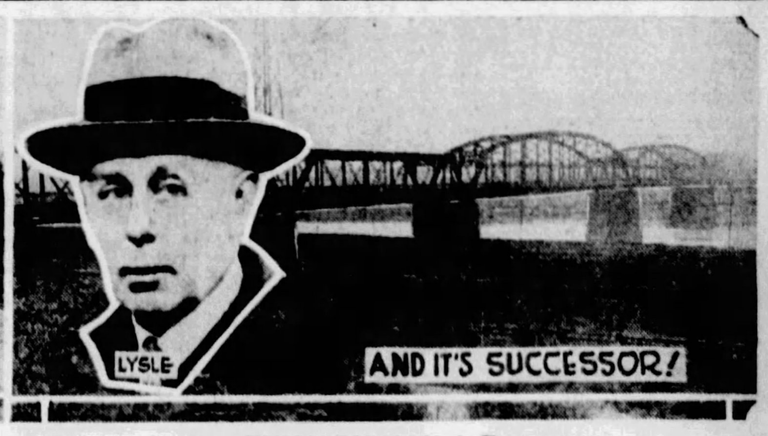
William Reddie, employed as a musician at the Stratford Theater, was the hero of the occasion.

Reddie, with a party of friends, was at the roadhouse when a lone Negro robber entered with drawn revolver. The frightened patrons executed the usual bandit commands: "Hands up and face to the wall."

Reddie managed to slip unnoticed into an adjoining room. He grabbed a shotgun hanging on the wall, poked it through a slot in the door and fired. The robber dropped dead.

Death Traps Removed -:- County Opens Two Bridges -:- Reduce Traffic Jams





COST $1,235,000

Elaborate ceremonies will mark the openingo f the $1,235,000 Glassport-McKeesport Bridge Wednesday. The new span is a deck cantilever type with arched bottom chords similar to the Liberty Bridge. Above is a general view of the new span. Norman F. Brown, director of county public works department, is shown in the inset.

ANOTHER DEATH TRAP GOES

This dangerous condition will be eliminated when the new McKeesport-Duquesne Bridge, costing $2,000,000, is opened on the same day. Crossings over 60 tracks of the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroads will be eliminated with the opening of the bridge. Mayor W. E. Farnsworth, Clairton, will be one of the principal speakers at the dedication.

BUILT FOR 2028 A. D.

Built to endure for a century, this span is the McKeesport-Duquesne Bridge. County engineers are proud of their latest achievement. County Commissioners and civic bodies of McKeesport, Duquesne and Glassport, with residents of the municipalities, will participate in the dedication of the two bridges. Mayor George H. Lysle, of McKeesport, will take an active part in the affair.

CHICAGO VOTE PUZZLES

RASKOB'S CLAIM NOT PROVED IN STRAW VOTE

By CHARLES N. WHEELER,
Noted Political Analyst.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—What about Chicago? That inquiry is coming in from all sections of the country.

Democratic enthusiasts are spreading the tidings from New York to San Francisco that Gov. Smith is going to carry Chicago by from 150,000 to a quarter of a million. This, they add, will be sufficient to swing Illinois into the Democratic column.

While that may be good salesmanship stuff for the boys as they try to dig into Mr. Raskob's strong box for campaign funds, it is quite a sizeable job, in the light of statistics.

RECALL DAVIS' FATE

Following the nomination of John W. Davis four years ago, the late Mr. Brennan considered that he had a good chance to sweep Chicago and Cook County. Whatever his pronouncements for public consumption, he harbored no illusions as to the probable result in Illinois. He did feel, however, that Davis made a sufficient appeal to the business element to insure a big sweep through Chicago and Cook County.

Mr. Davis was brought into Chicago a second time, near the close of the campaign, in a so-called whirlwind finish that was to smother the Coolidgeites. He was hurried to the West Side for two mammoth night demonstrations. It was in these meetings that, by implication at least, he took virtually the same stand that Gov. Smith now maintains on the prohibition issue.

And here is what happened in Chicago when the votes were tabulated:

Mr. Coolidge carried the city over Davis with a plurality of 866,476. He carried Illinois with a plurality of 876,346.

SMITH MAKES GAIN

In the nation-wide straw vote being gathered by the Hearst publications, there are plain indications that Gov. Smith is going to run far ahead of Davis in these four wards. In truth, the early developments in the canvass point to an overwhelming lead for the New York governor in these districts.

The poll also indicates that throughout the West Side territory and in the northwest wards, Smith is going to do much better than Davis and in some spots is going to just about reverse the pluralities.

But it will require an upheaval of volcanic intensity throughout the entire city to overturn the showing made by Mr. Coolidge.

JASCHA HEIFETZ

The famous concert violinist, Jascha Heifetz, may also be described as a husband. He was married secretly recently to that beautiful lady of the films, Florence Vidor, whose expensive wardrobe may wring sighs of admiration from Jascha's fiddle.

WEEK-END TOLL OF AUTOS HEAVY

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 3—(AP.)—Death of four motorists, three of them members of one family, who were killed at the Gravel Place crossing, near here, Saturday night, has precipitated a coroner's inquiry into whether the crossing is adequately guarded.

The victims were: Paul Phillips, 44; his two daughters, Elizabeth, 8, and Anna 6, of Brushy Mountain, and A. Victor Thoms, 40, of Stroudsburg. Thoms, until recently, was a watchman at the crossing.

Edwin Hoffner, watchman at the crossing, said he had attempted to warn the driver about the approaching train.

KILLED IN UPSET

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Joseph Brown, 47, of Mather, was killed yesterday when his automobile turned over on the Jefferson-Dry Tavern road near here. Mrs. Brown escaped unhurt.

LAD OF 4 DIES

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Jack Allison, 4, of Dallas, was killed last night while walking with his parents, by a machine driven by Clarence Ridgeley, 16, also of Dallas.

THREE IN FAMILY HURT

RIDGEWAY, Pa., Sept. 3.—Three St. Marys people were injured on the Johnsonburg-Ridgway road when their automobile collided with another car containing three men. The injured are: Anna Schneider, 19; William Schatz, Therese Schatz.

CYCLIST INJURED

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 3.—Herman Brown, 42, steel worker, failed to observe the approach of a street car while riding his motorcycle yesterday. They met head-on. Brown was taken to the Ohio Valley Hospital internally hurt and may die.

WOMAN RUN DOWN

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 3.—Thomas Efaw, 20, of Oak Grove, was arrested on charges of assault and battery and reckless driving, accused of crashing into Mrs. Lillian Harris, 29, as she was attempting to board a street car. She is in the hospital, semi-conscious.

THREE SISTERS HURT

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Mackenzie, of Toledo, O., was in Butler General Hospital suffering from injuries in an automobile accident. The Misses Anna, Helen and Mary Huber, sisters, also of Toledo, companions of Mrs. Mackenzie, were in the same institution, less seriously hurt. Their machine ran off the highway into an embankment and turned over twice.

KILLED BY CYCLE

BENWOOD, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Injuries suffered when he was struck by a motorcycle here yesterday caused the death of Frank Domicinus, 59, Benwood mill worker. George Woodscoe, 16, driver of the motorcycle, was held without bail. It was alleged Woodscoe was speeding.

SAY DRIVER SLEPT

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 3.—Two Cleveland motorists were severely cut, when with Edward Witkoff, driver, said to have been asleep at the wheel, the machine crashed into a telegraph pole on the Lakes-to-Seas highway at Salina, six miles east. Witkoff and William J. Mack, his companion, were rushed to Oil City Hospital. The car side-swiped one driven by Russell K. Young, of San Diego, Cal., nearly overturning it.

24 CASUALTIES

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Two persons were killed and 22 injured in automobile accidents in and near Baltimore yesterday.

'ST. MARK LIONS' FILL OFFICES AT REUNION

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 3.—At the business session of the seventh annual reunion of the Three Hundred and Thirty-second Infantry, known as the "Lions of St. Mark" because of Italian service during the World War, Akron was selected for the 1929 reunion, which will be held on the Saturday and Sunday prior to Labor Day.

The officers selected were: President, Ollie Haag; secretary, Walter Quail; treasurer, Oscar Little, all of Akron, O.

More than 700 members of the famous regiment were in attendance. The affair closed with an Italian dinner served in the Scottish Rite Cathedral.

PATRIOTIC FRATERNITY TO CONVENE TODAY

CARLISLE, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Two hundred and fifteen official delegates representing 231 councils with a combined membership of 46,000 are to attend the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Order of Independent Americans which opens a three days' session here today. The business of the convention will include the organization of a state auxiliary and a junior council composed of boys from 8 to 16 years old. A parade in which 2,500 persons and 12 bands will take part will be held this afternoon. Officers will be nominated tomorrow and elected Wednesday.

Boys Bitten by Dog Believed Rabid

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Narros Gerris, 4, and Paul Carroll, 16, were bitten by a dog, believed to have been suffering from rabies. The animal was killed by police after an hour's chase and its head sent to West Virginia University for examination.

The Cerris boy was bitten in the face and several stitches were required to close a wound in his nose. The dog grabbed the Carroll youth's hand.

LIGHTS NOW ILLUMINE STATE CAPITOL AT NIGHT

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The State Capitol is now a show place by night as well as by day. Spotlights and flood lights which illuminate the domes have been turned on for the first time and make the building stand out brilliantly against the sky from darkness to dawn.

52-YEAR-OLD BATHER SINKS IN MONONGAHELA

Believed to have been seized with cramps or exhaustion, Charles Bartley, 52, of Roslyn street, Swissvale, was drowned while bathing in the Monongahela River near Brown's Bridge, last night. Bartley was swimming with Joseph Watters, 52, of Forest Hills, when he suddenly sank. Watters made a desperate but futile effort to rescue him. River Patrolmen Charles Snyder and Henry Reddy recovered the body.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Arthur E. Gue.

Mrs. Henrietta M. Gue, 51, wife of Arthur E. Gue, died Saturday in her home at 1919 Sheffield avenue, Aliquippa. She was a member of the Woodlawn Presbyterian Church and the Fort Pitt Chapter, Order of Eastern Star. She leaves her husband, her mother, Mrs. Amelia Young; two daughters and a sister.

FIRST AIR-RAIL PASSENGERS PASS CROSSING CONTINENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Mayor John Dahl, of Fargo, N. D., arrived yesterday from Chicago, the first West-East passenger to reach here on the newly inaugurated trans-continental air-rail service.

He said he had traveled by rail from Fargo to St. Paul, Minn., thence by plane to Chicago, and covered the last stage of the trip by rail.

Pennsylvania railroad officials, who met the mayor at the station here, said the new air-rail service when completed would provide a 48-hour passenger service from coast to coast.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—The "air rail" service organized by the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Northwest Airways, Inc., and the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., has sent out its first westbound passenger.

He was R. B. Gentles, a grain broker. He boarded the Manhattan Limited for Chicago at 7:15 p. m., flies from Chicago to Minneapolis.

"This is purely a business trip and as soon as others hear of it, they will be doing it, too," he said.

MONONGAHELA'S BRIDGES OPEN WEDNESDAY

The city councils and civic bodies of McKeesport, Duquesne, Clairton and Glassport will unite for a celebration Wednesday afternoon, marking the opening of the McKeesport-Duquesne and the Glassport-Clairton bridges. A half holiday has been declared in the four communities. County officials will be present to participate in the celebration.

The celebration will start with a parade at 2 o'clock from Catherine street, Duquesne, to the new bridge, where Director Norman F. Brown, of the County Works Department, will present the bridges to the County Commissioners, who in turn will present them to the public. The speakers will be Maj. Jarvis J. Bain, United States district engineer; S. J. Topley, clerk of courts; Mayor George H. Lysle and Mayor James S. Crawford, of McKeesport and Duquesne, respectively.

Following the dedication of the McKeesport-Duquesne Bridge the parade will proceed to the Glassport-Clairton span. This bridge has been open to traffic several weeks. Burgess Charles E. Redman, of Glassport, and Mayor W. B. Farnsworth, of Clairton, will deliver the acceptance speeches. The other speakers will be Paul Didier, public service commission engineer, and Thomas H. Hester, jury commissioner.

PATRIOT DEAD HONORED

Members of St. Clair Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, yesterday made their annual pilgrimage to the old Revolutionary frontier and visiting in the vicinity of Greensburg, stopped and paid honor to seven American brothers and a cousin, who fought during the Revolution. Flags and a memorial tablet were placed on the graves of the heroes in the old Rose Fountain Burial Place in Hempfield township, near Greensburg.

The brothers were Capt. Robert McKee, Pvte. James McKee, Pvte. Thomas McKee, Pvte. William McKee, Pvte. Alexander McKee, Pvte. Hugh McKee and Ensign Samuel McKee. The cousin is Col. James McKee. The principal address was made by Edward McKee, a descendant of the heroes.

PROWLER TAKEN USES RAZOR

Receiving a call that a prowler had attempted to enter four apartments in an apartment house at 1403 North St. Clair street early today, two city detectives cornered a Negro in a second floor hallway and after a struggle, succeeded in overpowering him. During the fight the Negro drew a razor and tried to slash them, the detectives say.

The prisoner was taken to Frankstown avenue police station where he said he was Sherman Crockett, 28, of 2332 La Place street. He refused to explain his presence in the apartment. Police say they have received numerous complaints of a prowler in the vicinity. Crockett is charged with being a suspicious person.

FARM CRISIS---ROOSEVELT

undoubted fact that the tendency of business, big and little, to be 90 per cent for the Republican ticket, as it undoubtedly was in 1920 and 1924, has shown a tremendous change this year.

Carrying out this idea of eliminating bunk, the average citizen has at last stopped falling for the old-time propaganda that the Democratic party, if returned to power, will hurt the prosperity of the country. The average common sense voter, who is a business man, is not much concerned with what were the tariff issues between the parties in 1878 or in 1892, and he is not falling for the old stuff that the Democratic party would put in free trade and open the flood gates of the products of cheap foreign labor to drown out our own markets.

Letters for Smith

It is a very significant fact that I am personally getting letters from literally hundreds of business men all over the United States. A cross section of the average of these letters would read somewhat as follows:

"I have always been a Republican and I have always had the feeling in the back of my head in the old days that the Republican party would do more to help business and that there was danger in putting the Democratic party into control. I have been giving a lot of thought to the situation this year, and I have come to the definite conclusion that the Democratic party is just as much interested in the maintenance of national prosperity as are the Republicans. I have watched the business record of Gov. Smith during his eight years as Governor of the most important business state in the union. I know that he has the support of most of the leading business men in his own state. I am going to support him this year because I believe that, as a practical administrator and as a business man, he will make a better president than Hoover. Furthermore, he has had a splendid experience as an executive in week-in and week-out contact with a legislature. In Washington the president can only accomplish things with the assistance of the Congress. I don't believe that Mr. Hoover has the personal characteristics that would enable him to get on with Congress and get things accomplished nearly as well as Smith would. In other words, I am for Smith because he gets things done."

Will Divide Support

That is a fair representation of a large part of the business thought of the United States, and this means that Gov. Smith is going to divide the business vote with Mr. Hoover instead of losing 90 per cent of it, as did Gov. Cox in 1920 and Mr. Davis in 1924. Along the same line, the day has gone by when the Republican party could hand out the bunk of the full dinner pail and set up the bogey-man of business depression and soup kitchens, as they did on several previous occasions.

Don't forget that the workers in the factories and the mills are far better educated in 1928 than they were a generation ago. It is no longer possible for the head of the factory or his superintendent to post notices saying: "This plant will close down if the Democratic candidate is elected."

Thinking workers—and today most of them are thinkers—know perfectly well that threats of that kind are a joke and that cheats of the kind of Democratic tariff revision that will hurt our industries are equally a joke. All of this proves to my mind that in the industrial center of the United States, no matter in what section, Gov. Smith is going to run far ahead of the last two Democratic candidates.

"Farmers Going Broke"

Now to come down to the agricultural issues. There is one outstanding fact that neither Mr. Moses nor Mr. Hoover nor anybody else can get away from. This is the plain proof that the farmers of the United States have been rapidly going broke during the past eight years, and I might add that literally hundreds of thousands of farmers have gone broke. During these same eight years the Republican party has promised and promised again some kind of relief for this situation. During these same eight years no relief has been given.

This is a strong statement, but no Republican can get away from that simple fact.

In the corn belt of the United States there are 444 farm failures happening every working day at the present moment. There are three and one-half bank failures in the corn belt during every working day. Eighty-six per cent of all farm land is mortgaged. The farmers of the United States are getting less than any peasant laborer of Europe in return for their work.

What is the answer? It is found in the second important fact—a definite revolt among the farmers of the United States against the complete failure of the Republican party during eight years to accomplish anything for them. There is only one place for these farmers in revolt to go to, and that is to the side of Alfred E. Smith. They are flocking there by hundreds of thousands, not just because they are fed up with unfulfilled Republican promises, but for the further reason that they recognize in Smith a man who does things, a man who carries out his pledges. They are going to take a chance with Smith.

Switch From G. O. P.

Therein lies another great change from the condition of 1920 and 1924. Gov. Smith is going to pick up hundreds of thousands of hitherto Republican votes.

There is one more major trend to Smith—the people who have been doing a lot of quiet thinking about the lack of temperance in every part of the United States. These are not the professional prohibitionists or the professional wets, but the enormous majority of all voters who are more concerned with results than with theories. These peoples have been appalled by two outstanding happenings of the past few years.

First, the dangerous conditions that are affecting the boys and girls of America, due to the prevalent use of bootleg liquor. No one who knows the country can say that this condition exists only in one section or only in the cities. It is undermining the morals of the coming generation just as much in the South and in the West as it is in the East, and it is doing just as much if not more harm in the farming sections as it is in the cities.

Secondly, the method of administration of the Volstead law during the past eight years has been undermining and breaking down respect for all laws. It is a fact publicly witnessed by officials of the government that the prohibition unit of the Treasury Department has become the football and plaything of local Republican political henchmen in every state. The average Republican politician is strong for the existing methods of administration because they provide jobs for his deserving henchmen and a constant and lucrative source of graft for the dishonest. Thousands of heretofore honest young Americans who have got prohibition enforcement jobs during the past eight years have been turned into common grafters under existing methods.

BEAUTIES AT THE BEACH!

NEW CASTLE'S FAIREST

EXPLAINING THAT SUNBURN

Atlantic City forgot its beauty contest this summer, but its beach was occupied unofficially by potential representatives. New Castle, for instance, maintained its reputation for pulchritude among its fair sex when Helen Blaha and Hazel Huston (above) spent vacations at the shore.

MURDER OF BANKER COMES BY WITNESS OVER RADIO

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Radio fans who tuned in on station WFAA, Dallas, for a breakfast hour program Saturday heard a running eye-witness account of a murder.

Miss Vera Meade Grimes was playing "Moonlight and Roses" on the piano when Ralph Schulze, announcer, heard what he thought was an automobile tire blowing out, but he looked out of the window any way. Below he saw a man running across the street pursued by another man, who was shooting.

Cutting "Moonlight and Roses" off unceremoniously, Schulze took the microphone and dictated an account of the shooting of Orville Mathews, a bank executive, by V. R. Adams, a farmer who disagreed with Mathews over an election bet. The shooting occurred at Main and Akard, the busiest corner in town.

Adams claims the banker had refused to pay him $2,000 bet on the outcome of the Mayfield-Connallly senatorial race and had threatened to shoot him if he did not "let him alone."

A hurriedly gathered group of Bell county citizens were reported on their way to Dallas late today, bringing with them $1,000 bond for the accused slayer.

MERRILL'S BODY SENT TO UTAH

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—The body of M. M. Merrill, manager of Curtiss Field, N. Y., who was killed with Edwin M. Ronne when their airplane crashed in the Pennsylvania mountains a week ago today, was on its way to Richmond, Utah, today for burial.

When the body left the Merrill home in Hempstead, L. I., 15 planes from Curtiss Field, flying in funeral formation, flew overhead, diving in unison in funeral salute.

A cordon of police accompanied the body to the railroad station here.

You can kill every mosquito if you spray FLIT

Flit means a quiet, sleepful night. No singing, stinging mosquitoes. Flit kills them all. Flit clears the house of disease-bearing flies and mosquitoes in a few moments. It also searches out the cracks where roaches, bed bugs and ants hide and breed, destroying their eggs. Fatal to insects, harmless to you. Will not stain. Do not confuse Flit with any other product. Greater killing power insures satisfaction with Flit. One of the largest corporations in the world guarantees Flit to kill insects, or money back. Buy Flit and a Flit sprayer today.

DRY ISSUE WORRIES

HOOVER'S STAND OPPOSED IN EAST

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Herbert Hoover spent a quiet Labor Day at his home here and then planned another week of conferences with Republican state leaders and national committee officials before opening his speaking campaign in the East.

When the Republican presidential candidate takes the stump he will be fortified with an intimate picture of conditions in all sections of the country and the problem that he must solve to defeat Gov. Alfred E. Smith in the eastern states.

DRY ISSUE WORRIES

The only situation that appears to be worrying the Republican wheelhorses who are flocking here is their treatment of the prohibition question in the East. All admit that it is a problem, particularly in New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts.

Hoover's plan of campaign, as indicated in his conferences, is to stand on his declaration regarding the eighteenth amendment. His lieutenants will have the opportunity of emphasizing his characterization of prohibition as "a noble experiment" and his advocacy of a fact finding commission as comfort to wet Republicans. The candidate's personal utterances, it is well assured, will remain dry.

Going into New Jersey, New York and New England, Hoover will plead for an indorsement of the Republican protective tariff system, urge the consideration of foreign trade as one of the great problems of the next administration and argue that the Coolidge administration has brought both economical government and prosperous conditions, it is expected.

He is expected to deal particularly with foreign trade in appealing to the voters of the depressed New England textile sections. Their greatest hope for prosperity, he has already indicated, lies in a renewed campaign to expand their business beyond the markets of the United States.

BORAH TO TALK

Among those who are to call at the nominee's headquarters is Senator Borah, of Idaho, who is to begin his speaking tour at Detroit later in the month after Hoover himself has invaded the East for the delivery of his first address in that section.

Asked if he would talk about prohibition in the East, Borah said he most assuredly would. He also will discuss farm relief and other issues.

Other Senate leaders upon whom the Republican organization is relying to carry the party message to the voters include Johnson, of California; Brookhart, of Iowa, and McNary, of Oregon, all identified with the independent group; Watson, of Indiana; Capper, of Kansas, and Fess, of Ohio.

DEFIES THE AIR!

LIVES TO TELL OF IT

Would you care to drop 3,400 feet through the clouds? Most of us wouldn't. Jack Cope has! This veteran airman shattered all records for falling before opening the parachute when he stepped from a cabin plane over Ashburne Field 10,000 feet in the air and droped 3,400 feet before he pulled the 'chute. The previous record was 2,200 feet. This picture shows Cope (inset) and as he appeared as he neared the earth.

Drowned

CHARLES BARTLEY

Charles Bartley, 52, of Roslyn street, Swissvale, a Canadian war veteran, was drowned in the Monongahela River while swimming near Brown's Bridge, Homestead, Sunday evening.

LIVE WIRE KILLS CRANEMAN

Coming in contact with a high voltage wire in the plant of the Firth Sterling Company of McKeesport, where he was employed, George Moehtak, 29, of 1618 Longdale street, McKeesport, suffered burns which caused his death a short time later in the McKeesport Hospital. Moehtak, a crane operator, was at work at the time of the accident.

ARGENTINA SECTION TURNS TO DESERT

PARIS.—That Argentina will have a Sahara of its own is shown in reports to the ministry of agriculture of France. An extensive region north of the province of Neuquen is rapidly drying up and rivers and springs are disappearing. Great dust storms are sweeping over the country at times, and sand dunes form quickly and engulf the few remaining pastoral areas.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS GET EXTRA VACATION

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Six hundred high school pupils were granted an additional week's vacation, due to the failure of certain equipment for the new $500,000 high school to arrive. Grade schools will open tomorrow with an enrollment of 2,000.

FATALLY HURT WHEN AUTO HITS POLE

Injured when his automobile struck a pole in California avenue at Kleber street yesterday, P. F. McAuliffe, 34, of R. D. No. 3, Bellevue, was fatally injured. He died several hours later in St. John's Hospital from concussion of the brain.

Following a head-on collision of two automobiles at Tunnel street and Bigelow boulevard yesterday, two companions of a hit-and-run driver involved, were arrested and taken to Central Police Station along with a bottle of liquor said to have been found in the machine in which they were riding. Ralph Harrington, 24, of 217 Woodville avenue, West End, one of the prisoners, was cut on the hand. He said that he and his companion, H. Lowden, 25, of Woodville avenue, did not know the name of the driver who escaped. The occupants of the other machine were not injured.

Jolted from an automobile in Lang avenue, near his home yesterday, Ray Fisher, 19, of Lang avenue, is in a critical condition in the Pittsburgh Hospital. He is suffering concussion of the brain. Three young men who were riding with the injured youth are being held pending the outcome of his injuries.

U. S. PROBABLY TO RETURN $20,000 FUND TO KAROLYI

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—County Karolyi, first president of Hungary, was told by George D. Casto, deputy alien property custodian, that his claim for nearly $20,000 seized from his bank account during the war would probably be allowed.

Casto, said following an hour's conference with the former president of Hungary, that "his claim is a just one, and will likely be approved if he files a bill of equity in the District of Columbia Supreme Court."

He pointed out that two claimants to the money, the Hungarian government and a group of individuals, had been denied a share of it.

The money as received by Karolyi prior to the outbreak of the World War in 1914, when he was in America to remedy what he considered abuses caused by the Hungarian government.

About $37,000 was raised, of which $20,000 was expended. Karolyi said that if he is allowed the balance of the money he will place it in a fund to be disposed of under the wishes of the donors.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Count Michael Karolyi, Hungary's first president, in this country for 48 hours while en route to Spain, appeared at a meeting of the Anti-Horthy League last night, but kept his promise to the State Department that he would not talk Hungarian politics.

"It is due to an immigration regulation concerning transient travelers that I am here for a few hours," he told the 1,000 or more persons at the meeting. "It would not be fair for me to utilize those hours for propaganda for our cause."

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON SOCIAL EVENTS

Pittsburghers Drift Back Home

AT QUOTA CLUB

MRS. MAUDE INGERSOLL

Mrs. Maude Ingersoll will present "musical pictures" at the Quota Club dinner meeting on Wednesday.

HAVE you ever heard the train wheels talk? If you've been "listening in" the last day or so, you'll hear the wheels chant over and over again, "Home again, home again, from a foreign shore." And that will be the burden of their communings for a week or so, I daresay. And by middle September there'll be enough folks back in town for a little social activity!

The R. B. Mellons, who have been at Watch Hill, R. I., as usual this summer, are expected home Thursday, I've heard. And their daughter, Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife, the former Sarah Mellon, will return with them. Richard King Mellon and Mr. Scaife have joined them at Watch Hill for the week-end and holiday.

While I'm still talking about Watch Hill, I wonder if you heard about the bridge and dinner Miss Edna W. Sutton gave at the Riding Club Lodge at Watch Hill Wednesday night?

Among the guests were Mrs. W. J. Holland, Mrs. William N. Frew and the Benjamin R. B. Townsends.

MRS. LENA EMERY BRENNEMAN, of Amberson avenue, widow of Louis A. Brenneman, and Griffith Robinson, also of this city, were married, did you hear, on Thursday in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church by the Rev. Dr. Samuel McComb, of Boston. Only relatives were at the wedding.

The Robinsons will spend the autumn and winter, I believe, in New York.

JUST within the last week there has been a lot of "fall" talk in the air—chatter about weddings and debuts and things. The latest debut plans we've heard of concern Bettie Berger Dunlap, daughter of the Will Knox Dunlaps, of North Highland avenue. Her parents will present her to society at a tea in the Twentieth Century Club on November 9.

And on the second day of November Mrs. William T. McCullough, of Bennington avenue, will present her daughter, Elizabeth, at a tea in the Longue Vue Country Club.

AND there is even going to be another horse show. Of course, for several years now there has been one, but still it is a pleasant surprise, dont' you think? The third annual show of the Pittsburgh Hunt Club this year will be on September 15, beginning at 10 o'clock. Nearly all the events will be over the jumps. And immediately after the last class the Pittsburgh Hunt cup race will be held, a steeplechase of about two miles over post and rail jumps. Sounds like real sport, doesn't it?

NOW Elizabeth Dierks has named her bridal party. She will marry John O'Hara Anderson, son of the James Main Andersons, of Forbes street, on September 12 at 5:30 o'clock, in the garden of her home, you'll recall.

Mrs. Robert F. Barnett will be her matron of honor, and Mrs. John B. Veach, of Oil City, the former Jane Miller, of Edgewood; Jessie Marianne Thorp, Mrs. William F. Whitla, of Sharon, formerly Eleanor Thorp, and Barabra Lee, of Beverly, Mass., will be bridesmaids. Mary Stevenson, daughter of the junior George K. Stevensons, will be flower girl.

James Main Anderson, Jr., of Cincinnati, will be his brother's best man, and George K. Stevenson, Jr., Henry C. Fisher, George B. Moreland, Jr., and T. Reed Kennedy will be ushers.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE CHARLES SCHUTTE, of Meade street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Spencer Schutte, to John Malcolm Campbell, which took place Saturday.

MISS ANNA MAE KINLEY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Kinley, of Ulysses street, became the bride of Gilbert F. Connolly, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Connolly, of Hallack street, Wednesday morning in St. Marys of the Mount Church, Mt. Washington. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white georgette, and a veil of tulle, arranged with orange blossoms. She carried white roses, showered with lilies of the valley. Miss Leona Kinley, as her sister's only attendant, wore a shell pink georgette crepe gown with a large picture hat of the same shade. She carried pink roses and blue delphinium. Robert Connolly was his brother's best man. Following the ceremony was a breakfast in the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Connolly left for an eastern motor trip, and upon their return will be at home on Norwich street, Brookline.

MISS MARGARET and Miss Nellie A. O'Connor, and their brother, the Rev. Patrick F. O'Connor, of Lincoln way, McKeesport, returned yesterday after spending seven weeks in France, Italy, Switzerland, England and Ireland.

THE marriage of Miss Myrtle Benjamin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Benjamin, of Phillips avenue, and Jack Eisenberg, son of Mrs. Celia Eisenberg, of Brooklyn, N. Y., will take place this evening at 6 o'clock in the Terrace Grotto of the Morrowfield Hotel, with Rabbi B. B. Glazer officiating. A dinner for the immediate families and a reception from 9 to 11 o'clock will follow the ceremony.

* * *

MRS. WILLIAM HAYES PARRISH, of Rosslyn Farms, is making a tour of the White Mountains after spending five weeks at the Oceanic, Star Island, N. H.

RUTH REGRETS FAILURE TO POSE WITH HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth, the New York Yankee outfielder, said yesterday that when he declined to pose with Herbert Hoover for photographers at the Washington baseball park he "labored under a misunderstanding" and regretted that he did not meet the Republican presidential nominee.

"When the photographer asked me to go to Mr. Hoover's box," Ruth said in a statement, "I labored under a misunderstanding and deeply regret that I did not avail myself of the opportunity of meeting him. I hope Mr. Hoover will be gracious enough at some future time to permit me to present myself to him."

Ruth denied reports that his refusal of the photographer's request was based upon politics.

"Politics had nothing to do with it," he said. "The ball game was about to start; Mr. Hoover was the center of attention and I thought it would look odd for me to go to his box at that time."

RODY MARSHALL HOME ENTERED

The home of the late Rody P. Marshall, attorney, at 201 Lytton avenue, was ransacked early yesterday, police discovered.

Jimmying a rear cellar window, the burglars ransacked every room in the house, strewing wearing apparel and other articles about the floor. Police have been unable to determine whether any loot was obtained owing to the absence of Mrs. Marshall.

The residence of Frank Cordes, at 211 Lytton avenue, a short distance away from the Marshall home, apparently had been entered, police said, following the discovery of a broken window in the house. No person was found in the Cordes home, the officers said.

20 STATIONS TO RADIO GREEN LABOR DAY TALK

THE annual Labor Day address of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will be made available to radio listeners. The speech will be delivered in Cleveland and will be broadcast over more than 20 stations associated with the National Broadcasting Company. The speech will go on the air at 5 o'clock, Eastern daylight saving time. It will last approximately 40 minutes. Band selections will be broadcast just before and after the speech. KDKA and WCAE will be in the hookup.

for several years, and is now a Texan, will be heard with Roxy and His Gang during the program to be broadcast through the NBC system, including KDKA, at 7:30 o'clock. Bomonte began his training in Fort Worth, Tex., under Sam Losh. Later, his teacher urged him to go to New York to finish his musical education. In New York the Texan sang under a number of prominent teachers, including Richard Hageman. He was a soloist at the Capitol Theater in New York for several years, and is now a member of Roxy's Gang. Mr. Bomonte's career includes radio, operatic and concert work. Other features to be included in this program are selections by the symphony orchestra and the 100-voice mixed chorus.

The Trail Blazers, a band conducted by Harold Sanford, will play Grieg's "In the Hall of the Mountain King," from the "Peer Gynt Suite," during the Riverside hour to be heard through KDKA at 9 o'clock. Other numbers by the band will include the stirring opening number, "The Spirit of Progress March," by J. Oliver Riehl; Percy Grainger's folk tune adaptation, "Shepherd's Hey," and "Capital March," by Erno Rapee. A male quartet will sing "Three for Jack," by Squire, with string accompaniment, and Keith McLeod's "Southern Skies," with piano. The Trail Blazers will play Pryor's "Arkansas Huskin Bee" during the latter portion of the program.

Olive Kline, contralto, and the Rollickers' Quartet will be the featured artists in the General Motors Family Party to be broadcast through the NBC system, including WCAE, at 9:30 o'clock. In the program, Joe Green will be heard in another demonstration of his new instrument, the marimbaphone.

Gounod's "Faust" will be the United Opera Company's offering at 9 o'clock over WJAS. Continuing its policy, the United Opera Company will present this operatic adaptation of Goethe' tragedy in English. At 10 o'clock the Captivators are to be heard in their regular weekly broadcast of popular tunes of the day. Both of these programs will emanate from WOR, as key station of the Columbia system.

WAMPUM MAN KILLED STRUCK BY FREIGHT

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 3.—Patsy Tedesco, 52, of Wampum, was killed when struck by a Baltimore & Ohio freight train at Chewton.

"My dear, I'm all hot and BOTHered, no less! I mean I'm simply SEETHing with SPLEEN at this point because I've ACtually never SEEN anybody so POSitively perVERTed in their iDEAS as Arab is, my dear, because to hear him rave ON you'd HONestly think he was the WORLD's most HARassed WOLF of WALL Street or something, do you know what I mean? F'r instance the other DAY, my dear, we were PERCHing on the STEPS or something and the odd soul HEAVED a tremendous GRUNT all of a sudden and gave WAY to utter WOE, declaring vaCAtion was almost OVer and it was PRACticably ALmost time to go BACK to the old GRIND—can you COPE with it, my dear? REALly, he simply SLAYS me, because when I inquired 'WHAT grind?' the quaint pipsqueak GLIBly responded 'Oh, ANY old grind!' Whereupon I NEARly collAPSED with a faint YELP—I mean I was comPLETEly RAFfled and nonPLUSED because EV'rybody KNOWS Arab's NEVer done a STROKE of work in his LIFE, my dear, and the END of his SUMmer vacation is just the beGINning of his WINter one or something! But what ACtually inFURIates me, my dear, is the FOUL way he tries to imPRESS everybody with the idea he has to reTURN to his JOB or something because I mean to hear him TALK you'd think he had a reSPONsible poSItion somewheres! 'Old GRIND' me EYE! I mean I HONestly think what he NEEDS is to have SOMEbody put his NOSE to the old GRINDstone, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

TAKE EXPLORER WIFE'S NOTE

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—When Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer reached the Mount Evans Observatory camp of Prof. W. H. Hobbs of the University of Michigan, they probably delivered to Prof. Hobbs the first letter from his wife the educator has received since last spring.

The letter was given to the fliers by Mrs. Hobbs before they left Rockford, it was disclosed at the Hobbs home here today. Mrs. Hobbs has followed the news of the Hassell flight with deep interest expressed fear that the fliers had lost their lives.

OHIO OFFICIALS BLOCK GYPSY FUNERAL RITES

WARREN, Pa., Sept. 3.—Romany customs clashed with legal requirements of funerals when Thomas Nicholas, 75, Gypsy counselor, died in a tent at the Fair grounds. County officials refused to permit the body to remain in the tent for three days of feast and prayer and it was turned over to an undertaker. Burial will be at Paterson, N. J. Nicholas, chieftian of the tribe for four years, was born in Siberia and his personal effects included a passport book containing consular visas of many countries.

WOMAN KILLED IN CROSSING CRASH

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 3.—Mrs. John Bale, 35, near Sharpsville, was killed instantly when a Sharpsville-New Wilmington railroad passenger train crashed into an automobile stalled on a crossing near Sharpsville. Her husband, driving the car, and a son, John, Jr., were badly cut.

STEPS INTO HOT WATER AT CORN ROAST; SCALDED

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 3.—Adelaide Nokes, 15, stepped into a kettle of hot water while attending a corn roast. She was scalded on the right leg.

BUGS BAER Says

THE presidential quartet has steadied down to normal production and the months of September and October will ring with mirth and farm relief.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Both candidates broadcast very well in their initial attempt over the purple network. Both stuck to facts and neither one attempted the second chorus of the Star Spangled Banner.

While neither candidate is a Caruso, both have very neat wave lengths and get the most out of unlimited static.

Broadcasting is not easy. You do not enjoy the pleasure of hearing your audience applaud.

Neither do you enjoy the pain of seeing your audience arising and leaving you flat.

Curtis and Robinson have taken their vice-presidential nominations seriously.

They will talk over the air every time they can find an open window.

After listening to a political speech you can imagine how an Eskimo feels when all the faces on a totem pole get into a family argument.

But Curtis and Robinson promise to relieve the situation. If their voices blend they are going to ask their senior candidates to get together and harmonize during the children's insomnia hour.

Four candidates singing the electoral college blues will be entertaining as well as indestructible.

Hoover's voice ain't bad. Neither is Smith's. If they were just a little younger we could club together and send them abroad to study.

Robinson has a nice speaking voice. But he never uses it. He insists on yelling.

Curtis is also a good talker for the first 11 hours.

If candidates could get their conversation a little closer to their subjects it would be O. K. with us. The reason why Rome wasn't built in a day was because of a lack of cloture in the appropriation committee.

We look forward to that balmy winter's evening when those four jolly boys get together and tear the hoops off the moss covered bucket.

THE CARDBOARD LOVER

A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer PICTURE

BEYOND question the year's comedy honors must go to delightful Marion Davies for her charming and irresistible performance in this superbly uproarious entertainment. It is the great Broadway stage hit at last come to the screen. Merry Marion has often made the world laugh heartily, most recently in "The Fair Co-Ed" and "The Patsy," but her many admirers insist that now she has exceeded her best previous work by many, many, many happy laughs.

Theater Etiquette and Ethics In European Countries Show Wide Contrast, Writer Finds

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

GOING to the theater in England is a business, in France a diversion, in Germany a religion. In this way we may sum up the elemental differences among the various nations with regard to the ethics and etiquette of the playhouse.

You go to the Old Vic in London to see Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure" admirably played. But the audience is drinking tea and smoking cigarets—not between the acts, but while the play is going on.

These same people sat on stools and stone steps for an hour before the doors were opened, to get a good place in the pit. They do ot love Shakespeare less, nor the shilling more. But it's "business as usual," and "the early bird catches the worm." Shakespeare himself was a good business man, and retired with a nice fortune acquired within half a mile of the Old Vic. He was English!

Shakespeare doesn't spell ruin either, in our day, if the experience of the Old Vic means anything. The Old Vic has a new front, and is quite the smartest building in that section of Bermondsey. The audience isn't so smart, sartorially speaking.

Over in Paris there is another kind of audience. You go to the Comedie Francaise to see Augier's "Aventuriere" played with delicate precision. The polite Frenchmen in the theater have good clothes, but execrable manners. Men walk down the aisle after the first act with their hats on their heads. Women jabber away volubly for several minutes after the rise of the curtain, while doors are banging and seats are slammed down.

French writers on dramatic technique say the first five minutes of each act should contain nothing of importance to the action, because the audience will not hear it. After each curtain there is an exodus to the foyers. The French audience is restless, noisy, nervous—and it takes an insistent alarm clock to get them back to their seats in time. In fact, they get back 60 seconds late.

You go to the Schauspielhaus in Berlin to see Schiller's "Wallenstein" presented with conscientious historicity. Every man and every woman in the audience is seated before the curtain rises. As it rises, the doors are closed, and the late comer stays outside until the act is finished. What right has he to disturb the devotions of the others?

After each act this same process is repeated. The result has been the total elimination of that theatrical pest, the late comer, who spoils the first half act of every play in American theaters.

And if you start a conversation in a German theater you are likely to be mobbed. That's a worse sacrilege than snoring in church.

Another article concerning European theaters, written by Mr. Seibel, will appear on the stage and screen page of The Sun-Telegraph on Wednesday.

TWO COMEDIES OPEN HERE

The regular theatrical season of the Alvin will open tonight, the attraction being the Arthur Hopkins comedy success, "Burlesque." Hal Skelly and Barbara Stanwyck are the featured players.

The Nixon will open a preliminary season of two weeks this afternoon, with a holiday matinee, presenting the African wild animal picture, "Simba." This picture was filmed by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, who spent four years in the interior of Africa. There will be matinees daily.

The George Sharp Players will open the final week of their current engagement in the Pitt with a matinee this afternoon. Their newest offering is "Nightie Night," a comedy. The cast includes Bradley Page, Olive Meehan, Gus Forbes and Mabel Kroman.

PIRATES, CUBS GUESTS OF STANLEY TONIGHT

Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Nationals, has accepted the invitation extended by the Stanley Company to attend tonight's showing of Richard Dix's baseball picture, "Warming Up," in the Stanley. The Pittsburgh team also will attend. Fifty loge seats have been assigned to the party. Richard Dix offered a radio set to the hero of today's games.

LABOR DAY FEATURES IN KENNYWOOD PARK

Kennywood Park's Labor Day celebration today includes four concerts by Lieut. T. J. Vastine's Westinghouse band. Two concerts will be given during the afternoon and two in the evening. A Mardi Gras dance will be held in the park tonight. The giving away of a Waco airplane will feature tonight's entertainment.

CLEVELAND JUNCTION ON NEW AIR-RAIL LINE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 3.—(A.P.)—A newly-formed air-rail hookup between the New York Central lines and the Universal Air Lines system will start operation September 8, between New York and Minneapolis, cutting one day out from the present time required for the journey, Thomas Hamilton, president of the Hamilton Metal Plane Company announced today. The transfer from train and to plane will be made at Cleveland.

MOVIE STARS -:- WHO FIGURE PROMINENTLY -:- IN HOLLYWOOD NEWS

Richard Barthelmess has injured his ankle, causing a halt in the filming of his newest picture.

Florence Vidor, when she returns from her honeymoon, will make a film titled "Divorce Bound."

Greta Garbo is going to Europe for a vacation—and Hollywood is wondering how much John Gilbert will miss her.

Sally O'Neill is another of the Hollywood girls who is going "to chase through Europe."

Charlie Chaplin has postponed his work on his new picture, "City Lights," due to the serious illness of his mother.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

MR. HERCULES

By PAT HARRIS.

GATHER around me, children, while I tell you the story of my old college chum, Mr. Hercules. You may have heard of him before. He was the champion heavyweight, strong man way back in the old days before Jack Dempsey or even John L. Sullivan.

"He lived in Greece? I should say not. That book is all wrong. Grease is bad for the stomach. It has no vitamins, whatever they are. Spinach and suchlike is what you should eat as your maw tells you to.

"Now listen to what I tell you and don't ask any more questions.

"Mr. Hercules, we used to call him Herk for short, was what you might call a 'big man.' About seven feet tall he was and so wide he had to turn edgewise to get in the kitchen door. He used to say he didn't like to go in the house because he had to double up to keep from punching out the roof. I guess that's where he got the reputation of being too dumb to come in when it rained.

"And I think that's why he went to college. College buildings have wide, double doors and very high ceilings.

"Well, anyhow, Herk comes down from the old farm in Muscogee county to go to college at Athens, Ga. Maybe that's where you got the idea he came from Greece. There is a town named Athens over there, but it don't hold a candle to our own Athens, Ga.

"Well, now, it's a funny thing, but Herk, like all farm boys, started in to take the literary course. They always do. Just as the city boys study agriculture—you know, learning to be farmers. It's all in fun. My old man was a good farmer and the only book he ever read was the patent medicine almanac.

"Now about Herk. He hadn't been in Athens much more than a couple of hours when he goes and gets himself into a jam with the police. I'll tell you how come. He was standing at the corner of Broad and Seventh just looking them over, when along come a couple of cops.

"'Here, Big Boy,' says one, 'you got to move out of here. You're blocking the sidewalk.'

"'Why?' asks Herk.

"'Go on, comb the pine straw out of your hair. You're dumb,' says the cops.

"'Yes,' says Herk and he picks up the two coppers by the seat of the pants and starts toting them down the street. Of course, the crowd follows along laughing and the coppers are yelling to be let go.

"When they get to the bridge over the creek, Herk says: 'Do you boys crave to be turned loose?'

"'Dog gone, turn me loose,' they both yelled. And Herk did—after lifting them over the rail. They made such a splash the water came up on the walk. And neither of them could swim, so Herk had to go in and get them out. He got his new store clothes wet and lost his straw hat.

"That was not so good for Herk. And when they all came ashore, the cops pulled their guns and made Herk go along to the hoosegow. But when they got there they found that the cell doors were too small to get Herk in, so they couldn't lock him up.

"The chief decided that the only thing they could do with this big boy was to put him on the force. He'd have made a fine looking traffic cop. But the football coach put up a holler and Herk was set on going to college. So they let Herk go and he studied literature and played guard on the team.

"We cleaned up everything in sight those four years and if we'd have played the northern colleges in those days, we'd have beaten Harvard, Yale and Notre Dame rolled into one.

"What say? Didn't he wear any clothes but a lion's skin? Say, that's a good one. I'll tell you how come you see all the pictures and statue of Mr. Hercules that way.

"The boys always used to go coon hunting of a Saturday night. A lot of the boys had brought their hound dogs to college to get educated, too. There was one old dog in that bunch that liked cat better than he did coon and he'd leave a coon track any old time to follow a wildcat. Then the other dogs would trail after him.

"Well, one night we was all hunting and the dogs put something up a tree about an hour after we got in the woods. We had a colored gentleman along to climb trees after coons and we sent the fellow up. Down he came quicker than that.

"'Where's the coon?' we all asked.

"'Ain't no coon, says our brunette friend and he looks kind of gray and shaky. 'Just the bigges, ol' cat ah evah did see. Ah t'ink hits a painter.'

"Herk says he ain't afraid of no panther or any other cat, so up the tree he goes on. There's an awful lot of thrashing around in the branches and down comes Herk and the biggest cat I ever witnessed. One of the Profs said it was a Nemean lion. Herk just throttled that cat and skinned it right there and then.

"'What you going to do with that pelt?' asks one of the gang.

"'Make me a cap in place of the hat I lost' says Herk.

"He did. The critter's head made the cap part and the rest of the hide hung down the back like a cape. It sure was the berries.

"An artist fellow from Rome or New York or some place up north made a picture of Herk with no clothes on so as to show his muscles and the cat skin was in the picture for decoration. That picture was published in the Sunday papers all over the country and that's how come everybody thinks Herk always dressed that way.

"Now, run along, children, I got to do my chores. Come around some time and I'll tell some more."

LEMONADE STAND HELPS SWELL MILK, ICE FUND

The old tried and true lemonade stand stood the Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund in good stead when five little misses from Beverly Heights, Mt. Lebanon, decided to try their luck at raising money for the babies.

With their own little table and chairs, some of mother's kitchen utensils and china they set up business, adding to their sales persuasiveness by some garden flowers and their own sweet smiles and as a result have added $3.11 to the fund. The little salespeople-philanthropists were Etta Lou and Alice McMaster, Nellie and Emily Fergus and Walter Smith.

School opens tomorrow. Now who, among the boys and girls who have honestly intended to give benefits for the fund, have "fallen down" in their good intentions and let the vacation days slip by without carrying them out? It isn't too late yet. There will still be many pleasant days and many free hours during September which may be utilized for the good cause. It takes such a little time and no great effort to arrange and put into effect plans for a benefit—a lemonade stand, a show, a candy sale—and you would be surprised the heaps of fun there is in it. Just try it and see.

5 HOLDUPS ONE NIGHT, ARREST THREE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Three Washington young men, arrested here yesterday, are charged with a series of holdups in this region Saturday night. According to police, the trio confessed.

Those held are Arthur Poland, 26; Frank Poland, 30, and Herman Russell, 22. The are charged with holding up two Negro miners between Houston and Westland.

Between Atlasburg and Slovan, police said, the trio held up George Saunders and Alice Baker, fired when Saunders fled and robbed him of $2.

At Burgettstown George Moody was held up, but his 84 cents and pipe were returned to him. Police said the three admitted next robbing the William Cleland store at Florence of merchandise.

Near Burgettstown, police said, the three took a quart of oil from road machinery. Lopo O'Rapo, a watchman, drew a revolver but, disregarding the gun, the three men overpowered him and took the gun and $2.45, overlooking $40.

BALTIMORE'S SCHOOLS ALONE NOT TO OPEN

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Although Baltimore schools, both graded and high, will remain closed until September 17 instead of opening on Wednesday as originally scheduled, schools outside of the city will be opened on September 10, the original date set for the opening. Action of the city school board here was taken on the protest of parents, who feared to send their children to classes on account of infantile paralysis, not because health authorities thought the children would be endangered.

LABORITES TO HOLD TWO OUTINGS TODAY

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 3.—Union labor of Washington will unite with the Central Labor Union of Canonsburg in an outing at Maplevieu today. Many union miners will attend the rally at Bridgeville where Phillip Murray, international vice president, and Pat Fagan, district president, will speak.

Her Hobby

MRS. JOHN H. YOUNG

Don't be afraid! Mrs. John Young, wife of a Portland, Ore., policeman, is too expert a shot to pull that trigger unless she so decides. She has just won the Oregon state championship for marksmanship. Hubby induced her to try shooting—as a hobby.

Fulfills Ceaseless Round Of Duties After Return From Battlefields

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, was born at White Lodge, Richmond, in midsummer of 1894. Guilty of much mischief during his childhood days, he was often punished. When he grew older he was sent to Osborne Naval College. Leaving Osborne, he was sent to Oxford to begin his university education. During the World War he became a captain in the army and went to France, but was not permitted to get into the actual fighting. After the war he turned his attention to new problems.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

EDWARD P.

By WALTER and LEONARD TOWNSEND

CHAPTER XII.

H. R. H.: The Man.

THE Prince of Wales has always been interested in aeronautics. In 1912 he took up flying in earnest, not as a pleasure, but as the quickest method of getting about from place to place in the fulfillment of his duties. In March, 1919, he visited, with his brother (a qualified pilot), the Handley-Page works at Cricklewood. The two brothers were taking aviation instructions. Edward desired only to gain a little experience in flying so that he would not be at a loss when associating with air force men to discuss intelligently problems of aviation. Unlike his brother, his heart was more with the Army than in the thrills and adventures of the newest branch of the service.

PRINCE OF WALES

At this time, there was a movement on foot which had first originated after the Prince's investiture at Carnarvon, in 1913, to persuade the Prince of Wales to take up residence in his principality, and for a certain season of every year to transfer his household to Wales. Several Welsh towns urged their claims upon him and the people of Llandudno sent a special resolution to the Premier.

He had to content himself with promising to visit Wales whenever he could find the opportunity.

There followed a host of engagements in the Spring of 1919. Every town and city was eager to confer upon the Prince some signal honor in appreciation of his services to the country and as a proof of their loyalty. The Prince was made a freeman of the Borough of Plymouth and was admitted an Elder Brother of Trinity House, at the same time being called to the Bar at Middle Temple where he was made a Bencher of the Inn.

In the great Elizabethan Hall, the Prince, in evening dress, looked quite out of place even though he wore the broad ribbon of the Order of the Garter across his breast and several other important-looking orders on the lapel of his coat. His sunburnt face and athletic bearing spoke more of open fields and sunlit country roads than musty, confined chambers, beloved of the legal fraternity.

Honorary Freeman

On May 29, 1919, the Prince of Wales was admitted, by patrimony, to the Freedom of the City of London. The month before, the King had approved of his son's promotion to Colonel-in-Chief of the Twelfth (Prince of Wales Royal) Lancers, and the Royal Scots Fusiliers, and the young Prince took this advancement as a direct assurance of his progress in the military career to which he had for the last few years devoted every energy.

The Prince traveled from Buckingham Palace to the Guildhall in an open landau and gravely acknowledged the spontaneous cheers of the huge crowds which had lined the route. He was received at the entrance to the Guildhall by the Lord Mayor and city officials. After inspecting a guard of honor of the Honorable Artillery Company, the Prince was escorted to the platform where the presentation was to take place. H. R. H. was obviously nervous, but as he signed the roll, thereby making himself the youngest freeman of the city, his movements were quite dignified and confident.

The Lord Mayor inquired to know who presented the young Prince as a freeman. The honor fell to the representatives of the Fishmongers' Company, who presented His Royal Highness as an honorary freeman of their own company.

When the Prince of Wales stepped forward to speak he was cheered to the echo. He said: "I am deeply grateful to you for allowing me to come here today and to claim that franchise the right to which I possess by patrimony. It is a special pleasure to me . . . to be presented to you . . . as a fishmonger!

"The part I played in the war was, I fear, a very insignificant one. But from one point of view I shall never regret my period of service overseas. In those four years I mixed with men. In those four years I found my manhood. When I think of the future, and of the heavy responsibilies which may fall to my lot, I feel that the experience gained will stand me in good stead. With God's help I shall strive to follow the example of those distinguished men whose names have preceded mine

FIFTY FAMILIES ORDERED TO MOVE

Crusaders against dangerous grade crossings have won another victory. This crossing of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in Irvine street, Glenwood, is to be eliminated. Irvine street is to be lengthened and improved and instead of having to cross the tracks drivers will be able to continue westward on the north side. The courts have appointed viewers to assess 74 pieces of land that the city has condemned between Hazelwood and Glenwood avenues and 50 families have been notified to vacate. The cost is estimated at $960,000.

CONCERTS OPEN OHIO MOVIES SUNDAY

MARTINS FERRY, O., Sept. 3.—Adopting the New York Sunday concert system, movie theaters were able to score yesterday in the fight against alleged discrimination in enforcement of Sunday laws here. They gave a concert Sunday evening, followed by a movie show starting at midnight.

Theaters were thus enabled to open on Sunday after six weeks of fighting, which resulted in groceries, bakeries and shoe shining stands being ordered closed Sundays by the city administration, while news stands and gas stations were permitted to run.

AMELIA LEAVES WITH SMILE

Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flier, left Pittsburgh with a smile, fully forgiving this locality for being the scene of her first accident.

Her small bi-plane fully mended by expert mechanics, who worked through Saturday night, Miss Earhart left Rodgers Field shortly after noon yesterday and arrived in Dayton, O., late yesterday. With her was George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher.

The damaged parts of the Avero Avian plane, which was cracked up in an unnoticed ditch after landing Friday, were replaced from duplicate plane which was sent here from New York Saturday. The mechanics finished their work at 11 o'clock yesterday. Miss Earhart made an inspection, a few test flights and then was off.

Before going to the flying field yesterday, Miss Earhart left her room at Hotel Schenley and went to the Craft avenue car barns of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, where she inspected a new type car recently placed in service on interurban lines. With her were W. H. Boyce and Joseph B. Donley of the railways company.

While the ship was being refueled prior to the Ohio trip, Miss Earhart and her companion, Mr. Putnam, lunched on hot dogs and pop at the stand at the flying field. Mr. Putnam left Dayton last night for New York.

WAR VETERANS GATHER AT FAIRMONT

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Nearly 1,200 veterans of the West Virginia department of the American Legion convene here today, opening their three-day convention. Sessions will be held in the National Guard Armory.

About 100 members of the Legion Auxiliary have arrived also.

Among the early arrivals were 20 members of the Uniontown (Pa.) Voiture of 40 Hommes et 8 Cheveaux, who made the trip in a tractor-hauled reproduction of a French box car and a surrey of ancient, pre-war vintage.

Mayor Arthur G. Martin, of Fairmont, will officially welcome the Legiannaires today. Other speakers will be Judge Harry Shaw, of the Circuit Court; J. W. Stewart, commander of Fairmont Post No. 17, and Mrs. O. C. Ankrom, president of the local auxiliary.

A parade will feature this afternoon's activities.

FARMER KILLS HIMSELF; LEAVES SEVEN CHILDREN

MEADVILLE, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Frank J. Bodish, 66, a well known farmer living near Shermansville, ended his life yesterday by shooting. He is survived by his widow and seven children. Ill health was believed to have provoked the act.

WEALTHY GARDENER ENDS LIFE BY ROPE

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 3.—Despondent over ill-health, David King, 62, wealthy gardener residing on the Steubenville-Toronto highway, hanged himself in a wash house at his home yesterday. His brother Israel, found the body.

GAS WELL HITS MILLION FEET

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—One of the biggest gas well strikes in Marshall County in recent years came Saturday when a well on the old Peterson farm, near Cameron, showed a capacity of 1,000,000 cubic feet immediately after it was shot in.

The strike was made in the Maxim sand at a depth of 1,727 feet, according to E. M. Conaway, head of the Denver Oil and Gas Company, the owners. Congressman C. G. Bachman, of the First West Virginia District, is a stockholder in the company, which is composed mostly of farmers.

MOTHER OF THREE TRIES SUICIDE AFTER QUARREL

Following a quarrel with her husband, police say, Mrs. Inez Polis, 22, of 2518 Fifth avenue, mother of three children, attempted to end her life yesterday by shooting herself in the head. The woman and her husband, Joseph Polis, a confectioner, of 2518 Fifth avenue, quarreled over the wife's caring for a young woman who became ill in the store. Mrs. Polis is in a serious condition in the Mercy Hospital. The shooting occurred in a bedroom on the second floor.

CENTER CHURCH HOLDS CENTENNIAL SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 3.—Hundreds of personsn yesterday attended services at Center Presbyterian Church, near Canonsburg, which is celebrating its one hundredth anniversary. The exercises will continue until next Sunday. A historical sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Blaine Brown II, grandson of the Rev. Dr. Matthew Brown, pioneer educator and minister, who was the leading spirit in the organization of the church and its pastor. His son, Alexander Blaine Brown, served as pastor also, and Dr. Alexander Blaine Brown II, who spoke yesterday, also once held the pastorate.

340,000 PUPILS RETURN TO SCHOOLS TOMORROW

This is the last day of vacation, the public schools open tomorrow.

More than 340,000 school children in the county will commence their studies again, more than 102,000 of them attending city schools.

The Herron Hill Junior High School, equipped to care for 1,200 children, and the Regent Square Elementary School, with a capacity of more than 200 children, will be used for the first time. The Oliver High School Annex also will be opened for the first time.

By next month it is expected that the four-story administration building of the Board of Public Education, at Forbes street and Bellefield avenue, will be ready for occupancy.

17-Year-old Pilot To Cross Nation In 20 Hops

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Richard E. James, 17-year-old youth from Whitestone, N. Y., arrived here to prepare for his solo flight by easy stages from the west coast to the eastern seaboard.

He expects to take off from Oakland municipal airport tomorrow and cross the continent in about 20 jumps. The youth, one of the youngest fliers in the country, is using a Travelair plan with a Seemens motor.

On his trip West, young James was accompanied by Oliver James, an old-time pilot of New York, who assisted at the controls and helped map out a route for the return journey. They arrived in Sacramento last night from Reno.

NEGRO SUSPECT SHOT BY FEDERAL DRY AGENT

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Investigation is being made into the shooting of William L. Green, Harford county Negro, by Don Strong, Federal prohibition agent, during a raid Saturday on a still Green was said to be operating. Green is in a serious condition.

Strong, according to Spicer, fired as the Negro fled from the still. Orders to agents state that they are to use firearms only in self-defense, it was said at prohibition headquarters.

YOUTH OF 17 ACCUSED OF ATTEMPTING HOLDUP

Accused of having attempted to stage a holdup at the Gulf Refining Company service station, Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue, yesterday, Ted Simpson, 17, of Aldan, Pa., was held over when arraigned in Morala Court yesterday. Simpson was arrested by Patrolman Robert Groves who was passing the gasoline station at the time. The officer said he saw Simpson, armed, enter the place and walk toward Robert McNeil, an attendant.

Resenting Charge Of Theft, Tries Suicide

Because a maid in a Squirrel Hill home had accused him of a theft, police say, Ernest J. Edmonds, 41, a Negro chauffeur employed at the residence, attempted to end his life Sunday by firing two bullets into his body over his heart. The shooting occurred in the yard of the employer's residence in Woodland road. At Pittsburgh Hospital he told Homicide Detective Frank Crowley that he had shot himself after brooding over the accusation. He said he was innocent. He has been employed in the same position for 18 years.

FIREMEN GROPE WAY IN SMOKE TO BLAZE

Entering the basement of the Meadow Pharmacy, Meadow street and Larimer avenue, early today, firemen were forced to feel their way through clouds of thick smoke to extinguish a small fire. The blaze originated in the motor of a cooling system from an undetermined cause. The damage was slight.

ATTENDANCE LARGE AT CRISWELL FUNERAL

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 3.—One of the largest funerals in Franklin's history was held yesterday when former Judge George S. Criswell, who died Wednesday, was buried. Members of the Venango County Bar attended in a body, Masonic orders were largely represented, and jurists of nearby counties, were present.

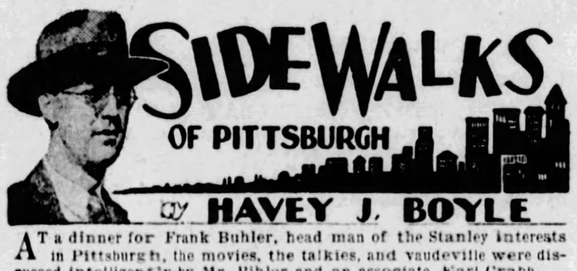
SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

AT a dinner for Frank Buhler, head man of the Stanley interests in Pittsburgh, the movies, the talkies, and vaudeville were discussed intelligently by Mr. Bihler and an associate, Earl Crabb.

The indications, in the opinion of these men, are that the talkies are here to stay, and that it will not be long before the movies will be able to present the third dimension pictures.

Someone asked why two-a-day vaudeville is no longer available in Pittsburgh. It developt that what has hurt two-a-day vaudeville here and in some other cities is that so many former vaudeville stars have deserted that line to enter musical comedy or revue work.

* * *

TO ENTICE them back to vaudeville would mean larger salaries than theaters of vaudeville size could afford to pay. The theatrical men will tell you that a vaudeville house has to be what they call an "intimate house"—smaller, in other words, than the movie cathedrals or the larger legitimate playhouses.

These men discussed theater architecture, pointing out that Cleveland, Brooklyn and Boston have superb designs. In a very thin voice, but highly colored with civic pride, and backed by a firm conviction we ventured the opinion that the Nixon in Pittsburgh is the most comfortable theater we ever sat in—here or abroad—we just added abroad for a little bluff—and these theatrical men agreed about the Nixon. Whoever built that theater knew something about the habits of the wild theatrical customers in his native haunts.

STOCK actors are famous for their energy. They work hard and they work long hours. The strain both mentally and physically is terrific. But few of them break down and all of them like their work. One of our spies, TC-89, reports the following about the George Sharp players.

"The thought uppermost in their mind now is rest. Johnny Moore is going to Bermuda. May Buckley is going on a farm in New England, her farm, that is. Ed Vail will go fishing. Mabel Kroman will take a motor trip.

"Little wonder they want rest and a change. They work at high tension for long seasons. A season of 22 weeks means, of course, 22 roles to be studied. But as much as they talk about loafing, they get fed up after about two weeks' lay-off and they go back for more work."

Our spy informs us that the talkies are naturally attracting stock actors. Olive Meehan is one of the latest stock actresses who has a chance to get into the talkies.

SINCE most of this today is theatrical we might report that a woman-dramatic critic in New York is married to a columnist now appearing in a New York play. The wife had to review her husband's acting. The husband took the part of a reporter in a play called: "Gentlemen of the Press." Said the critic of her husband: "He gave the best bank view of a city newsman ever presented in a 10-line part and in a five-minute emotional scene with a ham sandwich."

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 3.

President Calles of Mexico issued a very unusual statement. He said: "When my time is up I will get out. I won't accept the job of provisional President till one is elected, and I also won't at any future time accept the presidency of Mexico."

In all our 150 years of politicians we have never had one say that. On their dying bed they believe they will some day get back into office.

But Ambassador Morrow always told me that this was a very unusual man, this Calles, and that he had none of the earmarks of a politician.

Wouldn't it be great if Mexico started electing by the ballot instead of by the bullet, and us electing by the ballot instead of by the bullion.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

HALF WIVES

by Winifred Van Duzer

Ione Decides to Attend The Iris Club Affair Without Telling Lan

HIS words rushed through her thought. Uncertainty of the past weeks, the vague sense of life and love slipping from her grasp. Her fault was it? Try to be so unselfish that you're selfish?

She gave him a startled look, red sweeping her throat. "Why do you say this to me, Eddie?"

"Because I want you to be happy. An old fellow talking—pay no attention an ye would not."

He drove her home as silently as they had come, pressed her hand and was gone.

She found Alan glooming over a book; the apartment was disordered and dreary.

She cried, "Why, what's happened, Lan? Klarchen didn't quit? For heaven's sake!"

"It's Thursday," he answered with exaggerated patience.

"Her day off! Oh, I'm sorry! I could have come a little earlier—" Flying around the kitchen, beating eggs, sifting flour. "You see I stopped for dinner—Eddie Benz drove me home—"

She glanced up quickly; caught the fury of accusation in his eyes.

A year, then almost another, had passed, and Ione had seen her 50-50 arrangement slip into the discard. Twice she had shoved money enough across the bank teller's window to see him mark $300, and twice she had had to deplete the account and start again—for the dream house with gables.

Ione had been given a raise that brought her weekly check to fifty, but this information she withheld from Lan. He had forgotten completely, lately, to contribute to household expenses. Then Ione overheard Papa Weimer complain of his department, and shakingly carried to Lan the word, for she knew no other way. He was abrupt, and spoke of changing jobs. And then—

They quarreled, and he called it "the end." She had been compelled to meet Antony Ros and persuade him to sign a contract to present their songs.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

IT was not the end after all. Alan said to Ione, "I'm sorry, Frills—acted like a beast. I've always been jealous of Ros. Try to forgive it and forget it." He said this in a shame-faced way, eyes miserable.

She was only too eager to do what he asked. She forgave sincerely, understanding his hurt. Yet she couldn't entirely close out the thought that he had said, "This is the end!" That even in a moment of scorching anger he could say it to her.

Alan felt this in a troubled way; it filled him with unrest.

If they had quarreled they might have made up again and got the thing out of the air. As it was each became too sensitive of the other's feeling; too determined not to be betrayed into any expression which might seem critical or discontented.

So they grew formal, and love bowed its head.

Their second anniversary came and passed. It was about a week later so exotic a thing as the Iris Club loomed on the horizon like a feather of cloud—spread till it filled her sky.

The Iris Club was a highly exclusive organization of society girls. Once each year these young fashionables gave a big amateur show for charity, staging it in the magnificent ballroom of some villa on Long Island.

No expense was spared. First there would be a program by members of the club; vaudeville skits, songs and dances, for which they had been trained by some distinguished theatrical man.

Then there would be professional entertainers; stars from current musical shows in their most successful numbers. And the affair would end with tableaux and a great, masked ball.

Now as a prelude to this year's fete came Fifi Manville, president of the club, to the Weimar Company looking for songs. Eddie Benz had selected their numbers in other years but this morning he was out. She was passed along to Ione who sent her to Alan, remembering his branch head new songs of the sort the club wished.

Miss Manville was a big, pleasant girl, sophisticated and slangy, with a free and easy lack of manner which amused Alan. She perchad on his desk, swinging her feet and lighting a cigaret.

"What do you say to a couple of wows?" was her greeting. "Have to be snappy to compete with the costumes all righty!"

"Snappy it is." he grinned, "Here, now," reaching down a violently lithographed sheet, "And here and here. Run 'em over if you'll step along to the studios? You'll like these."

"And how!" responded the gilded girl, stepping.

They collided at the door; that set them laughing and they went on down the corridor with a fine, merry air.

And Fluff crept across the room, stealthy as a prowling cat, watched them out of sight. Face contorted, little claws drawn up till the nails pierced the flesh, she watched.

Soon the newspapers began to print long accounts of the Iris Club entertainment in the society columns; every day there were pictures of the club members and the costumes they would wear with astonished description of this blue-blooded frolic. The list of professionals was headed by Antony Ros.

Papa Weimar sent for Ione and told her she must attend. There might be a chance for publicity and it was an opportunity to meet these people and establish a friendly basis for future business.

She resigned herself to the assignment in a sort of desperate calm. Not an unreasonable request he was making, but Alan would be furious. He would see it as just another occasion for her meeting Tony Ros. . . .

A daring idea came to her. She wouldn't tell Alan she was going.

"Oh, a contemptible thing. Sneak out as if there were reason for his jealousy. I could hate myself for that!"

Yet it seemed the easiest way out.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

STOPPING by for Alan, Ione met Fifi Manville outside his door.

"Fixed us up all hotsy-la," remarked that child of exalted culture. "You're coming to see us? Cheerio!"

Only Fluff was in, yellow curls wild, cheeks streaked with tears, knocking her fists against the table.

"Why, Fluff!"

"She's got to stay out of this! You hear? Woman like her coming around where she doesn't belong! High and mighty with her Paris clothes and her cigarets! I'll tell her!"

Ione stared in amazement, choking back a laugh. "What in the world did Miss Manville do to you? Why, I'm sure—now stop that, Fluff! You're acting foolish."

Fluff shot her a glance of fury. But she settled down with a sob, kitten face brooding and sullen.

The incident puzzled Ione. "She's jealous of that society girl, poor little idiot. Envies her clothes—yet Fluff has been dressing up lately; she must spend more than her salary on what she wears. Now I wonder—"

Was Fluff jealous because Miss Manville came to see Alan? Fluff in love with Alan? Oh, ridiculous! Yet—

Well, it would explain many things.

But she told Alan what Fluff had said about Fifi Manville, making a joke of it. "I believe she's in love with you, Lan," she added in a teasing way.

"Don't be silly. Why should she be?" His face was red; he gave her a startled, worried look.

Surprised and unhappy, she talked on aimlessly. "Why shouldn't she be, charming Lanny? Well—oh, I won't be home tomorrow night—"

He said "Right." Easy as that, it was.

In the morning she took her bag to the St. Noel and engaged a room. She'd have preferred another hotel than this big, gorgeous one but it was near the office. She could come over here and be marcelled and manicured; she could take her time getting into the rose crepe gown. Papa Weimar would send his chauffeur to take her to the Iris Club doings.

Alan no longer traveled on the subway morning and night. He kept Hill's roadster in a garage around the corner from the flat and now he drove back and forth, always elated with the feel of freedom it gave him.

On this morning at the first of May he swung down the Park, driving slowly in Hill's car.

It was very joyous in a mild, soothing way; it made the whole world seem bright.

In this mood he came to work—found Fluff poring over the society news.

Bubbles -:- -:- By Madge Geyer

BUBBLES! Airy, fairy, colorful things, each floating away on a dream; each carrying a heart into the Land of Love. But no, each one carries but ONE heart, or perhaps a tiny bit of that one heart and the bubble-blower so hopes that the one for whom the heart is intended will see the lovely things and capture one of them before they float away into the Land of Never.

And little Dan watches the game and just for fun blows so hard once in awhile that a bubble bursts and then—what a sigh comes from the heart which so truthfully sends the bubble messages. Ah, well! One of them will float so softly through the air and reach its destination, never fear, for when Dan sees them he just can't resist willing them to the proper place, and soon—well, that's another story. But you may rest assured that they'll find love and live happily ever after!

Madge Tells Eleanor How She Guessed Her Identity

THE girl who had called herself Eleanor Lincoln caught her breath in terrified amazement when I forestalled her confession of identity by telling her that I already knew she was the Princess Olina of Transvania. In truth, I was a trifle short of breath myself, for the whole affair of which this girl was the central figure was so fantastic that I felt a certain kinship for Alice in her invasion of Wonderland.

"You know!" she gasped at last. "Who told you? Not Georges? Did he?"

There was anger in her voice now, and I hastened to exonerate the young man against whom I was sure her wrath was directed.

"If by 'Georges' you mean Mr. George Logan Jackson," I said smiling, "I can give you a negative answer at once. He did not tell me you were a princess of Transvania."

"I'm glad of that," she said, "for he promised he'd say nothing until I was ready to talk. But I know he will not object to my telling you that he is really Prince Georges, nephew of the King of Trees. But, perhaps, you knew that also."

"No, I did not," I returned. "When I suspected your identity after realizing that you and he must be old friends, I surmised, of course, that he belonged to your rank in life, but I had no idea who he really was."

"So you have been seeing the truth about us from the very first," she said, a distinct note of chagrin in her voice. "Either I was very clumsy, or you were exceedingly shrewd."

"I think you are wrong on both of these premises; I just happened to stumble upon some very significant clews."

"Fedor, for one, and that picture Mrs. Townsend saw for another, I suppose," she answered, then settling herself more comfortably she added:

"Please, tell me all about it, when you first suspected the truth, and what made you finally sure?"

The words were a request, yet in her tone there was a note of command, faint, almost indistinguishable, and, I was sure, not intentional. But I realized that in this abandonment of the mask she had worn, she was sub-consciously again the princess, accustomed to the deference of those about her.

I smothered a feeling of irritation, for I wished to hear her story, not to relate my discoveries, and told her of my early suspicion that the dog, Fedor, was her own and that she and young Mr. Jackson were old friends.

"It was easy to see that both of you were not natives of this country, and that you were people of rank in your own," I told her. "When Mrs. Townsend spoke of having seen a picture of someone resembling you with a dog exactly like Fedor, I could not help surmising from your face and later from your objection to Dicky's drawing you in a similar pose that the picture might be that of yourself. Later Mrs. Townsend discovered the copy of the picture among her photographs and brought it to me insisting that you must be the Princess Olina or some near relative of hers. Mrs. Underwood told her that she had received a letter from a friend in Transvania saying that the Princess Olina was in her native land, and I pointed out to Mrs. Townsend that while everything else in the picture was exactly like you, there was one facial detail entirely different."

The ghost of a smile flickered in the great velvety eyes of Princess Olina.

"I suppose you mean my poor nose," she said, putting up her hand to that perfectly shaped and decidedly attractive feature.

"Yes, I do," I said. "Until today I still had doubts of your identity on that account. Your pictures show the famous Hapsburg nose so characteristic of your family, but which can in no manner be construed as 'a thing of beauty.' While yours is perfect."

Navy Styles

On land or sea nautical fashions are being worn; being adapted to dresses for town wear as well as for seaside resort costumes. From the tailored frocks, with their sailor collars with plainly notched revers, to the chiffon frocks, with finely pleated panel attached to a regulation middy neckline, the influence of navy styles is strongly shown.

Too Many Motorists Think Only of Car

IN a San Antonio paper I saw this headline:

"Healthy Automobiles Must Be Provided Healthy Food." The article went on to say that poor gasoline and oil are as undesirable for a machine as unwholesome food is for a passenger in the car. The writer tells the tale of the car which "goes to pot on the long vacation drive because its owner thinks too largely in terms of his own diet and leaves the menu of the automobile to chance, fate and the vagaries of the filling station man."

DR. COPELAND

This is good sense, but let's turn it around. Too many automobile owners think about their cars, the fuel, the equality of the oil. They never overheat the engine or neglect to change the oil. The car is cleaned regularly and kept in best of condition.

Why does not the car owner treat his own body just as well? He would be inclined to assault the garage man who gave him inferior oil or put sand in the gas tank.

This same automobilist would accept complacently the contaminated or inferior food set before him in an eating place. Nothing is too good for his car, but apparently nothing is too bad to be put into his own stomach.

Anyone will "go to pot" if he leaves "to chance, fate and the vagaries" of the cook, what he is to eat and drink. You can buy a new car and can replace any part in its make-up, but you can't buy new kidneys or replace your liver. When these are destroyed by your own neglect nobody profits but the undertaker.

It does not pay to neglect the selection and the eating of good food. Perhaps it will help you to remember this by bearing in mind what bad fuel and oil will do to an automobile. Whether you own a Ford or Rolls-Royce you know the importance of excellence in these supplies. Whether you are a ditch-digger or a broker you cannot run the human machine on bad food.

What you are and what you can do in the world depends to a surprising degree upon the food you eat. Don't forget it!

Answers to Health Queries

T. K. Q.—What causes shortness of breath?

A.—This is usually due to indigestion, but it would be wise to have your heart examined.

R. B. Q.—What can be done for painful callouses?

A.—Soak the feet at night upon retiring, and apply warm linseed oil. The next morning soak again and scrape away the dead tissue. This should be effective.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, September 4

A PARTICULARLY active and important day is read from the preponderance of benefic angles between the leading or major planets. Those in the employment of others are especially favored and may expect preferment, recognition and increase of salary, if qualified. Others may share the good fruits of the conjunction of Luna and Jupiter, augury of financial increase and advanced position. But be careful in signing documents and be on guard against slight personal betrayal. Change seems imminent.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of preferment, promotion and increase of finance, but beware of small duplicities and sign all writings cautiously.

A child born on this day may be blessed with many qualities to insure success and position in life.

Contentment comes from a life of service—a life that labors and loves and is kind.—ANON.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT WOMEN DON'T TELL

MOST modern couples decide to have the automobile first—and the baby when they can afford it.

In his mother's eyes, an only son is always a burnt offering upon the altar of matrimony.

The admiration of a brand-new man is the only yeast-powder which will raise a girl's spirits and inflate her vanity, after they have been punctured by an unhappy love affair.

The first sign of a waning honeymoon is a man's grumble of protest at "all the heavy luggage" his bride is "dragging around."

HELEN ROWLAND

Alas, poor man! Just about the time when he has learned to tie a lawn tie, dance all the new steps and make love effectively, along comes some girl, marries him, and makes him stay at home, evenings.

It takes a lot of moral courage for a man to turn down all the pretty girls who come into his office looking for jobs or soliciting subscriptions—usually, his STENOGRAPHER'S moral courage.

"Learning to love" a man who "will be good to you," like acquiring a taste for carrots, spinach and cold baths, because they are "good for you," is merely a matter of bluffing yourself, and wishing you hadn't.

The meanest trick that nature can play upon a man, is to give him a dimple instead of dignity; and the meanest she can play upon a woman is to endow her with a sense of humor instead of with dimples.

A woman's birthdays may be "thrust upon her"—but her wedding anniversaries are her own fault.

The three vital moments in a modern woman's life are when the man says, "I love you," when the clergyman says, "I pronounce you—" and when the judge says, "Granted!"

Letters to Folks at Home Mean Too Much to Be Neglected, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

YOUNG people who leave home should make it a point to write faithfully to those who love and miss them.

Seeking one's fortune in the world means busy times. Days fly, and weeks pass, and letter writing is often neglected.

But the folks at home do not stop thinking of the absent member.

They wait and watch, and the disappointment is great as the days pass and no word comes.

One cent will buy a stamped postal card at any postoffice.

A pencilled message will mean more to those who long to hear from you than any gift you could buy.

Success or failure means nothing to those who love you best.

Write faithfully is one of the greatest comforts you bring them.

His Story

Dangerous Incident Recalled

A truly characteristic speech once again showing that modest, God-fearing side of the Prince's nature.

He had all along deprecated the danger he ran during his duties in France, but it was not until 1928 that Major C. H. Dudley-Ward, at the annual dinner of the London Branch of the Welsh Guards Comrades' Association, threw a new light upon this subject.

As Colonel of the Welsh Guards, the Prince responded to the toast of his health and said that unfortunately he had not had the privilege of actually fighting in the Guards' Division, though he served in a unit associated with it.

Major C. H. Dudley-Ward replied that:

"It all depends on what you call fighting. I can remember when we were in the Houlthurst Forest; on the top of the hill we had a lot of trouble with a heavy French gun which had shelled us all day. We sent messages to say that we were being shelled by the French, but nobody paid any attention. We sent out runners and got a reply that we ought to know the difference between German and French guns by that time. Suddenly we saw two figures coming along the hill. One of them was the Prince of Wales. When he got half-way up the hill the shells fell all around him, completely hiding him from view.

"Colonel Sterling, who was commanding the battalion, said: 'My God! They've got him!!' But they did not, for we saw him legging it through falling mud to a little German pill-box we had taken shortly before . . ."

Now that hostilities had ceased the soldier-prince found himself with plenty of time on his hands despite the associations which he retained with his regiments. He spent a great part of the later spring and early autumn of 1919 in devoting his attention to labor and housing problems. Since his close relation with working men at the front he wished to learn more about the conditions under which they lived in normal times. Accordingly, he paid frequent visits to the majority of the working glass districts in London and inquired into and inspected the dwellings. He took a lively interest in the aims of various housing committees and would have undoubtedly continued his good work had he not been called upon, in August of the same year, to carry out his promise to renew his friendship with the Canadian people—many of whom he had met in France.

Many Public Appearances

The "brother spirit" had a sequel when, on May 2, he was admitted as a Freemason of the Household Brigade Lodge No. 2614, on the Register of the United Grand Lodge of England.

The Prince of Wales realized to an extent which none of his predecessors had done that, by virtue of his rank, he belonged to the people just as much as he belonged to his family—or even to himself. He lost no opportunity therefore, of appearing in public whenever he considered his presence was desired, until the figure of the Prince was as familiar as it is today.

Scotland has always shown a warm affection for the Prince and he himself seems to reciprocate this feeling. In July, 1919, he paid his second visit since the Armistice to their country, visiting Edinburgh to have the freedom of the city conferred upon him. While there he inspected two detachments of 400 members of the Discharged Soldiers and Sailors' Federation and 300 Comrades of the Great War, walking among the ranks and conversing with the men.

The years he had spent in France had worked many changes in the Prince's private views and when it became known to him that rumors and gossip were current respecting his overdue marriage, he had the courage to emphasize the fact he had no wish to marry in any other direction than in which his heart dictated. By his persistent holding out for the right of every man to choose his own bride he has won the people over to his side.

The Prince's intelligent capabilities with regard to the working of his Duchy Estates, his masterly grip of the housing and labor questions, and lastly his own conduct in the Great War, all pointed to the fact that the young heir was a fit and proper person to gain his independence.

Accordingly, on July 1, 1919, the Prince of Wales was established in his own quarters at York House with the added dignity of having a separate "Court Circular" announcing his movements.

Although the Prince was justly proud of the trust which had been placed in himself, he was still a frequent visitor to the family circle when not away on his subsequent missions of ambassadorship.

For the next few years, however, the Prince was destined to enjoy few of the comforts of his bachelor quarters. His time was spent, in the main, in gaining an intimate knowledge of the customs and temperaments of the peoples of the far-flung empire over which he will some day be called upon to rule.

The ceaseless round of arduous duties which the Prince had willingly fulfilled since his return to England from the Rhine at last took their toll. He had been run down for a few weeks, and, catching a chill, he succumbed to a slight attack of influenza which compelled him to cancel a few of his arrangements, much to his disgust. He was well again and quite fit, however, before he proceeded upon the first of his great imperial missions.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Cuyler's Home Run, Representing Cubs' Winning Margin, May Have Killed Pirates' Last Pennant Chance — Penn Freshmen to Play Only One Football Game.

THE irony of baseball fate played a hand yesterday when a home run by Hazen Cuyler represented the one-tally margin by which the Cubs defeated his former mates and continued, if it did not actually complete, the wrecking of Pittsburgh's pennant chance begun by the Cardinals last Friday and Saturday.

Hazen Cuyler

This third straight defeat suffered by the Pirates, the first time they have been beaten three times in succession since they began their drive on July 7, was a staggering blow to any chance that may have remained for the Bucs to reach the top before the finish.

AS the Cardinals were winning over the Reds meanwhile, the Sunday reverse pushed the Bucs down to eight and a half games behind the leaders, such a well-nigh hopeless distance that nothing less than four straight wins at St. Louis in the series starting next Thursday can put even a suggestion of life in the flag prospect that was blooming most promisingly only a few days ago.

After today, the Bushmen will have only 23 games to play, and though they still have a reasonably good chance to beat out the Cubs, Giants and Reds, and to rise as high as second place, overcoming in 23 games such a lead as the Redbirds now hold over Pittsburgh is something that is very rarely achieved in baseball.

AFTER days of terrific hitting and high scoring that made them the sensations of both leagues on the offensive, the Pirates appear to have fallen into a batting slump just when they needed all their punch in order to make the most of their opportunity.

In their last three games against the Cards and Bruins they have scored a total of only five runs.

ANOTHER thing to go wrong at the critical hour was Burleigh Grimes' charm over the Cubs. Grimes pitched his usual high-class ball, a good enough grade to have won any ordinary game, but it was not in the books for him to come through this time, though previously he had not lost a game to the Cubs in the 1928 season, having downed them four times in a row.

PITTSBURGH fans were not surprised at the announcement made by the Giant management late Saturday that Pitcher Carl Mays had signed with the New York club for this year and next. They had suspected that Mays might not be paying his own expenses when he came here at the same time the Giants arrived for a series on August 23 and went East with them at the conclusion of the Western trip.

Carl Mays

The fact that the 25-player limit was in force at that stage and was not lifted until last Saturday may have had something to do with the delay in the making of the announcement. There are more ways than one of getting around a rule.

WHEN the Reds released him, it was rumored that Mays was suffering from an injury that might end his pitching career, at least as far as the big leagues were concerned.

John McGraw evidently has faith in the big submarine, however, and believes he may come back as Jack Scott did when the Giant manager gave him a chance after Cincinnati dropped him in 1922.

MAYS says he has not thrown a curve ball for three years. "That's the truth," he declared. "You'll hear batters talk about the 'dusting' curve I have, that sails up to their heads and falls off. That's bunk. When I started to speed up on the submarine ball I got more speed than many of the orthodox throwers. But it was not noticeable to the batter because the ball does not come up to him against the same background. Many batters judge the speed and whether or not a ball is good by the way it appears against the background of the park. The submarine ball leaves my hand at a point about six inches from the ground. The batter doesn't see it until it is right on his bat. That is the reason why they all talk about my curve. What I have done, however, is to slow up on the speed. The ball twists in the air and produces the optical illusion of curving."

AN innovation in the policy of conducting freshman athletics will be tried at the University of Pennsylvania this fall in accordance with plans mapped out by Lou Young, head football coach.

The freshman football team of Penn will be permitted to

COLLEGE ELEVENS OPEN CAMPS

PITT GRID SQUAD IN TRAINING TODAY

By JESS M. CARVER.

"SO THIS is Labor Day," chirped the little birds as they left their downy nests today.

"And how," came the answer from the throats of some 500 football players who are starting out on the 1928 campaign in a dozen college training camps throughout the tri-state district. It may be a holiday for most folks, but it's Labor Day with a big "L" for them.

Pitt, Penn State, West Virginia and Westminster are all in camp and ready for the tough year. The Mountaineers and the Lions will be getting their second day of drill, while the others will be outfitted and given lectures by their coaches.

The squads not in camp today will open up tomorrow or Wednesday, and by the last of the week, training will be in full swing everywhere except at Bethany. The Bisons start up a week from today.

Thirty-five men will greet the Tartan coaches and managers tomorrow. They will be quartered in the Tech dormitories and a training table established in the Field House.

The Pitt Panthers, settled at Windber, Pa., will be outfitted today and will get their initial drill tomorrow. The Panthers entrained for their camp yesterday afternoon, a party of 50 headed by Dr. John Bain Sutherland, head coach, leaving the Union Station at 2 p. m.

Duquesne, the remaining city university, plans to open camp Wednesday. Head Coach Elmer Layden is expected to arrive in town sometime today. Assistant Coach Pat Reagan, of Canonsburg, is already on the ground, as is Graduate Manager Holohan.

EAST COAST YACHTS MAY REGAIN TITLE

NEWPORT HARBOR, Cal., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Atlantic coast skippers with two brilliant victories on their slate, are confident today that the international star-boat championship would be recovered from the West, holding it for first time.

Eastern craft, with spine-tickling finishes, have captured the first two races of the five-day series, and yachtsmen today looked upon any one of the four stop the point standings as the ultimate winner.

Orsatti looks like a melancholy Dane and so much like Buster Keaton that he used to double for the latter in the movies. But there's nothing solemn or dusty about his work on the ball field.

Young outfielder recently recalled by the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals from the Minneapolis Club of the American Association. He has been a hitting sensation in the hot drive pennantward.

Allegheny Denies Stealing Gerber

WALTER GERBER, Homestead football and basketball star, will enter Allegheny College at Meadville, Pa., and not the University of Pittsburgh, as reported on Saturday, when it was announced that he was all set to accompany the Pitt squad to camp at Windber on Sunday. When the Pitt gridders left, Gerber was among the missing.

S. S. Townsend, athletic director of Allegheny College, today denied over long-distance telephone wild-eyed statements that Gerber had been "kidnaped" or raided out of Pitt's clutches.

"Gerber has intended all along to come to Allegheny," Townsend said, "and has made a number of trips to Meadville to look over the college, attend fraternity parties, etc. He wanted to take pre-medical work and was impressed with our course.

"Recently I heard that Pitt, through Dr. Carlson, former freshman coach and head basketball coach, had been trying to talk Gerber into entering its university to take up a business course. Pressure on the athlete became heavy last week and I was notified of it through a special delivery letter. On Saturday, I happened to be passing through Pittsburgh in my automobile and visited Gerber's home and learned that he was on the verge of going with the Pitt squad. We had a serious talk, with his parents sitting in on the conference, and, in the end, largely through their persuasion, he decided he wanted to come to Allegheny after all. He accompanied me back to Meadville and will be with us when the football training camp opens on Tuesday.

"As for Allegheny stealing the player from Pitt, I should say the shoe almost was on the other foot."

Gerber, who scales about 155 pounds, was one of the best football and basketball players in Western Pennsylvania scholastic ranks last fall and winter.

CUYLER HERO AS CUBS TOP PIRATES

CHICAGO, Sep. 3.—It was a wet day at Wrigley Field here yesterday, and the downpour, coupled with the 3-2 victory of the Cubs, tended to dampen the Pirates' pennant ardor considerably.

Ki Cuyler was a hero in the eyes of Chicagoans as the Corsairs went down to their third straight defeat. The former Buc smacked out a home run and a single and got a base on balls to lead the Cub attack. His homer in the second gave the Bruins their first run, and in the fourth he tallied the winning counter on Hartnett's sacrifice.

Pie Traynor's single with the bases full in the first inning accounted for Pittsburgh's only two tallies. Eleven Corsairs were left stranded on the bases.

Burleigh Grimes, trying for his twenty-third victory, was the mound victim. Although Burleigh allowed only seven hits, one less than did Malone, he failed to keep the blows as well scattered as did the local hurler.

About 20,000 fans sat in the rain to witness the battle.

BELL COPS TROPHY

DENVER, Col., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Berkley Bell, of Austin Tex., tenth national ranking tennis player, won the Colorado open singles title here yesterday, winning a hard-fought match with Ralph McElvenny, Stanford University star and third ranking intercollegiate player, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6, 2-6, 6-4.

SCULLY SWIM HEAD

TORONTO, Ontario, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Capt. Charles R. Scully, of New York City, has been elected president of the International Professional Swimmers' Association, Inc., at a meeting of about 30 members, who are here for the Wrigley 15-mile marathon Wednesday.

EARL SANDE PLANS LAST RACE SATURDAY

NEW YORK, September 3.—(AP.)—Earl Sande plans to ride his last race in the Futurity, closing feature of the Belmont Park meeting that starts today, and then will turn his attention to the training, and possibly the owning, of race horses.

Some time ago Sande announced he would quit riding on American tracks at the end of the present season, but would ride in Europe, where the weights are higher. The little jockey, one of the greatest in American turf history, has had trouble making the weight for some time.

HITTER

Orsatti quickly threw fear into the hearts of the National League pitchers by banging out three home runs in a little more than a week upon his return to the big show. His hitting streak was checked in the Pirate series here last week, in which he also was injured and forced to the sidelines.

MACK FANS CONFIDENT FAVORITES ARE "IN"

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—This staid, old town, according to the more reliable advices, was settled by William Penn more than 300 years ago and, if this statement seems to be extraneous and altogether unimportant, then you aren't aware of the fact that it will require only a few minutes around 5 o'clock this afternoon to unsettle the entire community all over again. At that hour, the final American League returns on the holiday double-headers will be coming in and, for all anyone knows, the Philadelphia Athletics may be in first place by nightfall.

Only a game and a half back of the Yankees this morning, the Athletics can go to first place at least if they beat the Senators twice and the Yanks blow two to the Red Sox. Six years ago this thought might have been regarded as an excerpt from the leaves of McGuffey's Third Reader. But six weeks ago, the Yanks were the "perfect ball club;" perforated would be more descriptive of their condition today.

BLANKED BY NATS

The tip off on them came yesterday when they were shut out in Washington by Marberry, a pitcher who couldn't have beaten them with a horsewhip early in July. Many of the Athletic regulars went to Washington to see their arch-rivals for the first time in nearly two months, a state of affairs brought about by the vagaries of the American League schedule, and the word they sent back was that the Yanks were all washed up and ready for the clothes hamper.

This estimate may prove to be as accurate as the average micrometer or the average expense account, much of its accuracy or lack of same depending on two possibilities. The first of these deals with the question of how soon, if at all, Pennock and Lazzeri return to the lineup and the second with the events of the next two weeks. It is altogether likely that the American League pennant will have been won and lost within the ensuing fortnight.

However, Philadelphia is asking no question about the future. It is too busy making comparisons between the Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals, the contending clubs in the 1928 world series, according to the residents' notion. The town, in other words, thinks the Athletics and one of the regular guests at Joliet are much the same. It admits that both of them are "in." The natives have quite an argument at that, starting with the contention that the entry that is coming versus the entry that is going is an equation that usually produces disastrous results for the latter. They tell another here, too. This is to the effect that the rest of the league, meaning Boston, Washington, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis is anti-Gotham, and, therefore, is likely to fight the Yankees with greater enthusiasm than it fights the Athletics when both go on tour later this month. They say the word is "no quarter" for the Yankees all along the line, the impression having been gained here that this might not even be as much as six and seven-eighths.

OPEN SERIES SUNDAY

Anyhow, Philadelphia is front pacing its baseball now in a manner unknown before, even in the days of old when the Athletics won their pennants as a matter of course. The long, uphill fight old Connie Mack has made through the years since he last had a winner in 1914 has appealed to the local imagination and the Philadelphian who failed to watch the scoreboard, listen to the radio or talk to perfect and maybe imperfect strangers about the ball club probably would be placed under police surveillance as suspicious characters. Just how the boys will contain themselves while the two entrys are having it in a four-game series, starting next Sunday, is strictly a local problem.

However, such series do not always have the bearing on the situation they popularly are supposed to exert. For one thing, the contenders often break even, leaving them exactly where they were. For another, the club that takes such a series may step right out from that point and blow everything. For further information on this matter, kindly consult John McGraw.

CITY LEAGUERS CLASH TODAY

The Hermes-Grove City League team will make another effort to try and sew up the City League championship this afternoon at Dean Field when the Dairymen meet the J. L. Thomas club. The afternoon game will be a league affair, then the clubs meet again in the twilight session in an independent clash.

With Reliance Life creeping up, the Carson outfit will have to step on the gas to win the loop flag. The Insurance boys are only half a game behind and it looks like a real fight.

RACE DRIVER KILLED

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Walter Axe, Terre Haute dirt track auto driver, was killed almost instantly yesterday when his car skidded through a fence at Jungle Park Speedway, 30 miles north of here. Axe was leading the field in a 150-mile event when the accident occurred.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

WHO will be the National League's most valuable player for the 1928 season?

Jim Bottomley and Frankie Frisch, of the St. Louis Cardinals, likely pennant-winners, are the popular choices, but I have my own selection.

He is Burleigh Grimes, star pitcher of our Pirates, and none other.

During most of the current season, Burleigh has been THE pitching staff of the Corsairs, and it is largely due to his efforts that the locals still are in the race fighting for the lead.

To date, Grimes has won 22 games and lost 12. He has finished 24 games out of 32 started, of which he has won 18 and lost 6. He has been a relief pitcher nine times and has been credited with winning three of these games and charged with losing one. He has been a willing work-horse all the way.

If the Pirates should happen to come through in the end and beat out the Cardinals, there will be nothing to it. Grimes will get the call. And, even if they do not, he deserves the honor and prize award, anyway.

HAVE you noticed how Babe Ruth has fallen down in his home-run hitting during the last month, or since the American League pennant race tightened up, with the Athletics giving the Yankees a great fight for top honors?

If you haven't, prepare yourself for a shock. The Babe is NOT going to equal or beat his home run record this year, and this despite the great start he made. For a long time he was far ahead of his record-breaking pace of last year, and he still is some days ahead of his mark in 1927, when he set a new record of 60 circuit clouts, but the point is that he has slowed down almost to a whisper and has scant chance of getting going again in wholesale fashion.

Up to July 30 he had hit 41 homers. In the entire month of August he added only six to his total, against nine for August of last year. Now, on Labor Day, he still needs 13 homers to tie his record and has only 26 more games to go, which means that he will have to average one home run every two games to catch up.

It would seem that with the race so close the pitchers are working harder on the Babe, because everything counts. In the past, with the Yankees so far out in front at this stage that there was no chance of heading them off, it was a good thing for the league to let the Babe get a crack at a good pitch down the alley every now and then. He'll have to hit for all he gets in the stretch this season.

A MEETING of the utmost importance in the local tennis realm is slated for tomorrow evening in Snyder's Cabin, on the upper courts in Schenley Park, when concerted action will be taken to obtain better playing facilities on the public courts in the city parks. The occasion will be the conclusion of the tournament of the Schenley Park Tennis Association, at which the prizes will be awarded by James F. Malone, president of City Council and a keen booster of sports and athletic facilities for the public. Other civic notables also will attend and it is hoped that much progress will be made toward obtaining improved playing conditions for next season.

Whereas public golf facilities in the city and county are being bettered, little attention has been paid to tennis, and, as a result, the public courts are in poor condition. This is especially true in Schenley Park, where there are not nearly enough courts to meet the demand, the available courts have rocky, uneven surfaces, the nets are torn and the screens are dilapidated. Equipment to keep the courts in playable condition is sadly lacking.

THE Schenley Park Tennis Association was formed for the purpose of obtaining some sorely needed action to improve the conditions in the parks. Starting with a nucleus of four enthusiasts, Bernard Grossman, David Lasday, Herbert Lomask and Norman Solow, its membership has been increased to 65 and is still growing. The organization's tournament for men and women players has been played despite the handicap of the rundown conditions and a strong plea will be made at the meeting tomorrow night with the city fathers in attendance to bring the playing equipment up to standard, in the hope that future champions may be developed on these playgrounds and the cause of tennis thus advanced hereabouts.

Card Rooters Wrecked; See Team Win

CINCINNATI, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Undismayed by the wreck of their special excursion train over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which split a switch at Olney, Ill., yesterday, injuring eight persons, a large delegation of Cardinal rooters arrived here in time for the baseball game between St. Louis and Cincinnati and made merry over the victory of their favorites, who won the game, 5 to 3.

They sat together near the Cardinal bench, tooted horns, rang cowbells and emitted hoarse but hearty cheers throughout the pastime.

The injured were left in hospitals at Olney.

Tri-State Card Full

EIGHT tracks in the tri-state district will present automobile races this afternoon in commemoration of Labor Day, namely Bridgeville, Butler, Altoona, New Kensington, Washington, Monongahela, Weston, W. Va., and Cleveland. Balloon races are an added feature to the program at Altoona, while motorcycle races will share the program at Butler.

One of the best racing programs ever offered in this section of the state will be presented at the Bridgeville Speedway, where a 75-mile and 25-mile event are scheduled under the auspices of the Keystone Recreation Corporation.

Bringing together 18 of the leading automobile drivers in this section, the events have created unusual interest and indications are that a record crowd will witness them.

Henry Coslow, director and manager of the Bridgeville Speedway, has spared no expense in lining up an attractive entry list and, as a result, some keen competition is in store for the racing fans. The entry list follows:

Jack Casey, Frontenac, Pittsburgh; Joe Baker, Frontenac, Pittsburgh; Maurie Rose, Frontenac, Dayton, O.; Bill Stizel, Rojo Special, Pittsburgh; Sammy Grabiak, Grabiak Special, Slickville, Pa.; Billy Lindau, Junior Special, Shearden; Lafe Stahlman, Dodge, Brookville, Pa.; Bill Chittum, Rojo Special, Columbus, O.; Ouris Truesdale, Chevrolet, Swissvale; H. Patterson, Chevrolet, Ambridge; Cliff Hudson, Frontenac, Arnold; Kenneth Crispin, Frontenac, Youngstown; Omar Jenkins, Oldsmobile Special, Morgantown, W. Va.; C. A. Wall, Chevrolet, Washington, Pa.; A. J. Marshall, Marshall Special, Pittsburgh; Johnny Clevenger, Willys-Knight, Weston, W. Va.; G. M. McComb, Frontenac-Ford, Clearfield, Pa.

The Bridgeville Speedway has elaborate facilities for the parking of thousands of cars and many out-of-town visitors are expected to attend. The first race will get under way promptly at 3 o'clock.

RACE TO PIKE'S PEAK

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col. Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Nine drivers today awaited the starting signal in the tenth annual Labor Day race to the summit of Pike's Peak.

The most sensational of the drivers was Cannon Ball Baker, who in a speed trial last week drove a special make, air-cooled motor to the summit in 17 minutes 55 seconds.

MACKS DEFEAT COLTS, 7-5

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 3.—With 1,000 of Lefty Grove's admirers from his home town, Lonaconing, cheering themselves hoarse, the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Cumberland club of the Mid-Atlantic League in an exhibition game here yesterday, 7 to 5. Grove pitched the eighth inning and retired the side on consecutive strikeouts. Fox and Orwell, of the Athletics, and Byrnes, of the Colts, hit homers. Keyston went the route for the losers and allowed only 10 hits. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	0 0 0 1 1 0 0 5 0	7	10 2
Cumberland	2 0 0 0 0 1 0 2	5	10 2

Batteries—Yerkes, Grove, Jones and Perkins; Keyston and Seigle.

Lefty Kleinhaus' home run over the left field fence with two mates on base in the tenth inning enabled the Johnstown pitcher to win his own game against Charleroi at Johnstown yesterday, 8 to 5. Clarksburg staged a three-run rally in the ninth inning to defeat Scottdale, 5-4, at Clarksburg, and Wheeling defeated Jeannette, 11-7, at Wheeling.

FARRELL MUST WIN THREE TO BEAT HAGEN

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—To defeat Walter Hagen, British champion, three straight matches over 36 holes is a seemingly impossible task, but Johnny Farrell, of New York, American open titleholder, must do it to win the mythical "world's golf championship."

Sir Walter made it two matches to nothing in their championship series Saturday when he stroked the 6,542-yard Ridgemoor Country Club course in three under par to beat Farrell, 5 and 3.

CANUCK SPEED BOAT TROPHY AT DETROIT

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The Canadian speedboat, Rainbow VII, piloted by Commodore Harry H. Greening, of Hamilton, Ontario, won the North American championship trophy at the Detroit power boat regatta yesterday. The Rainbow VII negotiated the 30 nautical miles at an average speed of 60.01 statue miles an hour.

Wedding Story Riles Gene

LONDON, Sept. 3.—After winning acclaim from the British fighting crowd as the former heavyweight champion and from literary circles as a student, Gene Tunney today left for Paris.

He will join Thornton Wilder in the French capital and together they will make a five weeks' walking tour through parts of France, Italy and Switzerland.

Before leaving, Tunney took violent exception to a purported interview in the New York Daily News in which Miss Polly Lauder, his fiancee, had said their wedding would be postponed until all the glamor over Tunney had subsided.

"It is certainly inaccurate and probably faked," the former champion said. "The heavyweight championship of the world and my engagement to Miss Lauder have nothing to do with each other. The question of boxing titles will not postpone or hasten my marriage one second."

Labor Day It Is for Ringsters

BOXING shows involving Pittsburgh talent are carded tonight at the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, and the Cambria county fair grounds at Ebensburg.

Jack McFarland, Wilkinsburg featherweight, boxes Johnny Datto, hard-hitting Filipino of Cleveland, in the 10-round windup at New Castle, where Datto knocked out U. S. Carpentier in six rounds a couple of weeks ago.

Andy Stahura, of Braddock, meets Mickey Dugan, of Cleveland, in the six-round semi-final; Jess Hoak, of McKeesport, boxes Walter Dickerson, of California, Pa., in a six-rounder, and Ray Compton clashes with Johnny Busang and Harry Miller and Elmo the Mighty cross gloves again in two four-round openers.

Promoter Bill Jolly still is packing them in with his weekly shows. Last Monday night 2,900 fans jammed their way into the compact arena at prices of $1 and $1.50.

Promoter Johnny Conway has arranged a nifty bill as the Ebensburg fair holiday feature. In the 10-round windup Young Saylor, of Charleroi, will try to even up for a decision Larry Brignolia, of Erie, won over him at Meadville last spring. Another 10-round bout brings together Rudy Ceder, of Tarentum, and Bobby Richardson, of Portage, old rivals. Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, boxes Bobby Amster, of New York, and formerly of Johnstown, and Mickey Hart, of New Kensington, battles Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, in the six-round preliminaries.

An all-star show of 50 rounds is billed at the Atlantic City Speedway as a Labor Day matinee today. Pete Nebo boxes Dominick Petrone in the 12-round windup, Vic Burrone meets Tony Mandell and Joey Knapp takes on Billy Alger in 10-rounders, and there will be three six-round preliminaries.

Cuddy DeMarco and Jack Katkish are on edge for their 10-round main bout at the Washington (Pa.) Gardens tomorrow night.

Promoter Jules Beck is arranging a fine card for his third outdoor show of the season, at the Duquesne Steel baseball park Thursday night. He has Ike McFowler, Johnstown Negro heavyweight, on with Jim Sigman, of Toledo, former Navy heavyweight champion, who has boxed Jack Renault, Quintin Romeo-Rojas and other, in the 10-round main bout; Slambang Harry Tayler and Mule Brown in the semi-final; Battling Gizzy and Young Angelo in another, and will have Joe Louder and Bobby Burns paired with suitable opponents. It looks like one of the best balanced bills of the season in this section.

play only one game during the entire season, that being a contest with the Cornell yearlings on November 10.

IN THE past, first-year grid teams at Penn have played a schedule of from four to six games with other freshman college outfits or prep school elevens.

One or more of these games were played away from home, necessitating the absence of the frosh players from classes.

COACH YOUNG always has advocated that freshmen devote all their time to study. He believes that the excitement incident to approaching games causes the yearlings to be retarded in their studies, resulting in conditions and other scholastic worries that often lead to the loss of star athletes in later years. So the frosh this fall, apart from one game of their own, will have to pick up their football experience in workouts with the varsity, imbibing the system they must play in their sophomore and other years.

Lou Young

DAZZY VANCE has been accused in the East of picking his spots and dropping himself into what are termed easy games, but Ed. Murphy comes to his defense with some strong evidence to the contrary in the form of figures.

Five clubs are ahead of Brooklyn in the National League pennant race, and against them Vance has the creditable record of 11 victories and seven defeats, for a percentage of .611. He has won four out of five games from the Cubs, three out of four from the Reds, has won two and lost none against the Pirates, has won two out of four from the Giants, and one out of four from the Cardinals. Against the Braves he has won five out of six, and against the Phillies he has won one and lost one.

VANCE has pitched in 32 games and has gone the route in 20 of them for a total of 236 innings, winning 18 games and losing nine. Only Burleigh Grimes and Larry Benton have pitched more complete games or a greater number of innings.

It will be noted that Dazzy has worked only twice against the tail-end Phils, which does not indicate that he did any spot-picking.

THE Brooklyn star has won eight of his last nine games, yielding only 13 earned runs, or an average of not much higher than one per contest. In his last three games he has given only one base on balls, raised his strike-out total to 153 and his shut-out record to four.

THE Pirates are so well supplied with outfield material, even with Clyde Barnhart sent to Indianapolis under option—an anticipated release that was officially announced last night—that Joe Devine, the club's Pacific coast scout, is not recommending the purchase of any of the star gardeners out there.

The Coast League's leading outfielders, from a batting standpoint, are Buzz Arlett of Oakland and Smead Jolley of San Francisco. Devine expresses the opinion that Arlett hits a ball as hard as the more highly touted Jolley.

Joe Devine

"ARLETT," says Devine, "is a switch hitter, one who can bang the apple as hard from one side of the plate as the other. He is normally a right-hander and is fast for a big fellow. I've never seen any player but Arlett drive the ball over the centerfield fence at San Francisco, not even Jolley. Smead has a good arm, and while not as fast as Arlett, is worth a trial in the majors.

"The Pirates are well fixed for outfielders or I'd advise purchase of both men."

Aldridge Sent to Newark

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Vic Aldridge, veteran right-handed pitcher, has been sent to the Newark team of the International League by the Giants on option for the rest of the season.

Aldridge, after being traded to the Giants by the Pirates even up for Burleigh Grimes last winter, held out for more money than McGraw was willing to pay him, and finally reported late in May. Since that time he has failed to pitch winning ball.

Aldridge has participated in only 22 games for the Giants this year, and has won four decisions, while losing seven. He has pitched only three complete games.

Aldridge was born in Indian Springs, Ind., 34 years ago, and made his professional start with Indianapolis of the American Association in 1915. Since then he has pitched for Denver, Erie, the Cubs and Los Angeles, in addition to the Pirates and the Giants.

The Cubs first got the Indiana hurler in 1917, but they sent him to Los Angeles after two seasons of relief work. The Bruins recalled him to the major leagues in 1922, and after the season of 1924 traded him to the Pirates with Grantham and Niehaus for Cooper, Maranville and Grimm. Aldridge was a star in the 1925 world series for the Pirates, winning two games, but was defeated by the Yankees last year.

LOCAL INTER-SCHOOL TOURNEY WEDNESDAY

The first round of play in the Pittsburgh inter-school senior and junior high tennis tournament will be staged Wednesday on public courts throughout the district. The school torneys were run off last spring, but the inter-school competition had to be postponed because of inclement weather.

SMOKY JOE HURLS NO-HIT CONTEST

AKRON, O., Sept. 3.—Smoky Joe Williams, veteran pitcher of the Homestead Grays of Pittsburgh, pitched a not-hit, no-run game against the Akron General Tires here yesterday, winning 8-0. Only 29 batters faced him, Graham getting two bases on balls.

PARE WINS TITLE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Emmett Pare, of Chicago, won the men's singles title of Southern West Virginia by defeating Thomas Clines, of Louisville, Ky., 6-1, 6-2, 6-1, in the finals of the annual tournament.

U. S.-BRITISH PLAY ENDS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Apparently certain of defeating England's representatives in decisive fashion, first rank players of the United States have turned their attention to their next foes in team matches—the French.

Having gained a three to one lead on Saturday, the Americans faced the second and final day of their competition against the British today with something approaching equanimity. But the French, at present, are much more to be dreaded as tennis foes than are their brethren from across the English Channel.

The Franco-American team matches will be played at Germantown on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. The tri-color will be represented by Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon, Christian Boussus, Pierre Landry and Rene De Buzelet, while the American team will be picked from George Lott, John Hennessey, Frank Hunter, Fritz Mercur, Wilmer Allison, John Van Ryn and Wilbur Coen.

The closing matches in the British-American competition follow.

SINGLES:

Van Ryn vs. Edward Higgs, England.
Allison vs. H. W. Austin, England.
Coen vs. I. G. Collins, England.

DOUBLES:

Allison and Van Ryn vs. Austin and Gregory.

In a special exhibition match, Higgs and Collins will clash with Lott and Hennessey, the new national doubles champions.

U. S. BUSINESS POSITION GOOD AT SEASON'S TURN

OUTLOOK FOR FALL TRADE BRIGHT

By W. S. COUSINS.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The Labor Day holiday marks the dividing line between the summer period and the active fall season in important lines of American trade and industry. It is regarded as an important land mark in the financial markets and the transportation industry, which has come to look upon the last four months of the year as the harvest period for profitable operations.

Increasing evidences have come to hand, in recent weeks, of the vast improvement in strategic lines of American business since June. Increasing demand for steel and copper products is but one evidence of these materials. The railroads have begun on a broad scale their program of fall buying for rails and equipment; the motor car manufacturers will inaugurate a grand expansion program calling for many million tons of steel and other products, and the record-breaking building construction program has also called for an enormous increase in the amount of construction steel used.

Most of the business barometers point to very fair weather in the balance of the year, following a summer in which the seasonal shrinkage in business volume has been below the average of the last five years. The fall trade already has gathered considerable momentum, helped along by fairs, merchants' weeks and fall pageants of various kinds. Revival in trade has in many cases been considerably above the expectations of the financial and trade experts, due to the enormous shrinkage in inventory earlier in the year.

BREAKS RULE

The week before Labor Day is not, as a rule, considered the most propitious time for staging a violent forward movement in speculative stocks prices. It marks, rather, the culmination of the summer holiday period, with workmen crawling reluctantly to their offices. Yet the week just closed witnessed one of the most sensational bull movements of the year, with daily transactions close to the 4,000,000-share average and all of the old-line speculative favorites in the forefront of the movement. Pushed downward mercilessly a few weeks ago on false political rumors, General Motors once more assumed the leadership of the bullish forces and completes a recovery of 30 points on the move.

What does it all mean? Has the new bull movement so confidently predicted for the fall of 1928 actually been ushered in, or does the wild activity of the market since the middle of September represent nothing more than the reckless juggling of stocks by the pools and professionals seeking to "get in on the ground floor." Eight out of every 10 stock experts in Wall street and elsewhere would confidently state as their opinion that the "big move is on," but it is axiomatic in the financial district that when everybody is bullish the market is due for a tumble.

At any rate the market has shown its ability to surmount the handicap of high loan rates and even the shortage of speculative money in one of the most persistent forward movement of prices in recent years; and present prices have in all probability not discounted the expected improvement in important departments of business this fall.

FINANCIAL STRAWS

A decline in bankers' acceptance rates near the week-end, combined with the purchase of about $2,000,000 of government bonds in the open market by the reserve banks, were regarded as important financial straws. The month of September holds important financing projects for the United States Treasury as well as for numerous American industrial concerns, and big borrowers are naturally concerned with the important question of money rates.

Most departments of American business are moving along satisfactorily and further expansion is confidently expected in the fall, despite the presidential election, which will play an insignificant part in the business policies of the year.

The harvest will be large, the winter wheat and corn crops giving promise of a much larger yield than appeared in the June and July estimates. Winter wheat estimates are for a crop of 579,000,000 bushels and corn will top 3,000,000,000, thus coming close to the record. Manufacturing and distribution have been well sustained during the summer and the whittling down of inventories has laid the groundwork for a broad expansion in industrial production before Christmas.

Stock Markets, Banks Take Holiday

Banks, stock exchanges and the principal commodity markets throughout the country are closed today in observance of Labor Day. Business will be resumed in all markets at the usual hours tomorrow.

BOND MARKET MOVEMENTS SLUGGISH

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The boiling stock market last week had only a minor influence on the bond market. On one or two days trading was more than moderately active and prices showed some disposition to seek higher levels, but most inevitably recessions set in and the picture of the market for the week showed little change from the week previous.

Undoubtedly the major reason for the market's failure to share the enthusiasm of the stock market was the maintenance of high time money rates. Time money showed none of the easing tendencies displayed by call money and the credit structure remained stringent from the bond trader's point of view. "After Labor Day" seems now to be the accepted time for the revival of bond market activity, but in view of indications of "tight" money for the immediate future, there are many market observers who refuse to assent to this optimistic theory. Features of the week included the strength of rails, which improved earnings reports; firming up of some industrials, especially coppers and utilities in sympathy with the strength of the stock market, and the sudden improvement in United States government obligations. The latter, which have been dull and weak for some time, appeared to receive the support of institutional buying, apparently by banks, in an effort to prepare the market for the expected new Treasury financing this month.

Gains in the railroad group were small and dependent largely upon earnings reports, although increased car loadings provided a more optimistic tone. Anaconda Copper 7s, which were traded in volume and touched a new high for the year, were the feature of the industrial group, rivaled in activity only by Public Service of New Jersey 4½s. Strength of the copper issue was based largely on maintenance of high copper prices and expectations of a shortage in view of reduced stocks, while the utility owed its strength largely to reports of a 49 per cent increase in earnings for the first half, buoyancy of the stock and rumors of mergers. Trading in other industrial issues was of small volume.

The foreign list was active throughout the week, but price movements were irregular. Italian industrial issues attracted most of the demand.

STEEL PRICES KEEP STEADY

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—While business in finished steel last week was reported to be largely against specifications, there was a good trade in structural steel, with a large tonnage pending for various projects throughout the country. The railroads continued to inquire in a moderate manner for many qualities of steel, and steel pipes were in better demand for oil and gas lines. Prices were generally very steady. Pig iron was firmer and the market continued active.

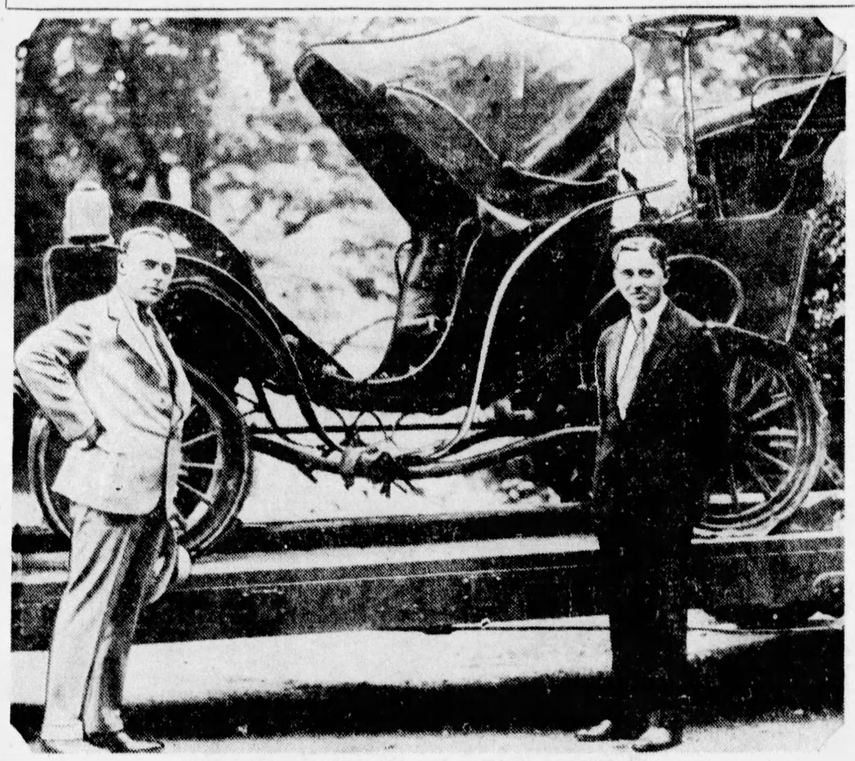
Sales of copper to domestic consumers were in somewhat better volume late last week, and it is now estimated that a large part of their September requirements have been filled. Foreign buyers have shown less interest in the market. The amount of metal still available for delivery this month is said to be comparatively small, so that producers are in a rather strong position. The price remains unchanged at 14¾ cents for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut valley.

The tin market was steadier toward the close of the week. Consumers were reported as moderate buyers of nearby positions. Statistics for August were awaited with interest. Lead was advanced again by leading producers and the demand from consumers was active, while producers and consumers' stocks were reported as moderate.

Zinc was steady, with business moderate, consumers apparently buying largely for requirements. Ore was again firm.

Antimony was slightly easier, due to reports of lower offerings from the Far East. Spot demand was moderate.

ANOTHER FOR FORD'S MUSEUM



THIRTY-FIRST IN NATION'S CAPITAL

The motor vehicle of bygone days, owned by the late John R. McLean, father of the Washington newspaper publisher, as it was loaded for shipment to the Ford Museum at Dearborn, Mich. The machine is a Columbia electric and was the thirty-first car to be seen in the national capital years ago. In this model the driver sat on a high seat at the back of the car. Storage batteries providing the motive power were located under a leather covered box at the front. William E. Leahy and Charles M. Thomas are shown in the picture with the car.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Demands for fruit and vegetables at the local wholesale produce district were rather dull Saturday. The quotations were about unchanged.

All grades of butter listed were advanced ½c per pound, the new prices being effective Monday. Eggs closed firm and butter steady at unshaken quotations.

Poultry was liberal in supply, with the market about steady, demand fair and quotations unchanged.

Car lot supplies were rather light, a total of 360 cars being on track. Included in the arrivals were 10 cars of apples, 8 cabbage, 7 cantaloupes, 5 celery, 8 grapes, 6 lettuce, 2 onions, 1 oranges, 14 peaches, 13 pears, 1 peas, 4 potatoes, 6 sweet potatoes, 3 watermelons and 3 prunes.

NIP PLAN TO BUNCO GIRLS

A plan to mulct women and girls of their money was nipped in the bud, city detectives say, with the arrest of Nord Weston, 54, of Cincinnati, in a downtown hotel yesterday.

An advertisement promised women secretarial and other good jobs. Ann Hamilton, 28, of 1461 Alabama avenue, Dormont, was one of many who answered. She was given a "position" as secretary of a publishing firm in New York, she testified today in Central Police Court, but was told she must deposit a $50 cash bond with Weston to assure him that she would accept. Miss Hamilton did so, but later notified police when her suspicions were aroused. The arrest of Weston followed. Before Magistrate John Orie Weston was fined $100 with option of 60 days in workhouse. Detectives say Weston is wanted in five other cities.

Fugitive Killer Walks Into Jail

After eluding police since Friday night, Ewell Marron, 22, a Negro, of 604 Jones avenue, walked into the Allegheny County jail yesterday and asked to be placed under arrest. Marron explained that he was wanted in the fatal stabbing of William Johnson, Negro, 27, of 2702 Penn avenue, Friday night.

Marron says he had been beaten repeatedly by Johnson and had drawn a penknife in self defense.

Threatening Johnson, he asserts, his attacker struck him such a way as to drive the knife against Johnson's breast. Johnson died at West Penn Hospital. Marron was lodged in Central police station on a charge of murder.

HIS FOURTH WIFE

GENE WEST CHANDLER

Byron Chandler, "Millionaire Kid," Harvard graduate, thrice-divorced, has taken a fourth wife—the beautiful Gene West, cabaret dancer. They were wed in Paris, where young Chandler, once a gay Broadway spender, has more or less settled down.

CURB MARKET BROADER BUT NERVOUS

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Activity on the curb market broadened considerably last week, and a variety of industrial, radio and chain store shares were carried to new high levels for the year or longer. The market again failed to keep pace set by the buoyant stock exchange, however, and frequent fits of nervousness over the money situation caused prices to waver up and down pointlessly.

De Forest was an early feature of the radio group, jumping from 11 to 15 points under heavy buying inspired by reports of greatly increased production. Heavy accumulation of Freshmen then developed, and Canadian Marconi next fell into heavy buying with the announcement that it will undoubtedly join the British radio merger. On Saturday Columbia Graphophone leaped up to a new high at 82 when the Kolster Radio Corporation, with which Columbia has a working agreement, announced that Dr. Kolster's invention of recording sound on film had been perfected.

Fox Theater "A" was heavily accumulated in expectation of highly increased earnings, the turnover exceeding 300,000 shares. The supply was plentiful, however, and it was bid up less than 3 points. A number of issues responded sharply to increased earnings, including Galesburgh Coulter Disc, up 13; Peoples Drug, up 6, and Atlas Plywood, up 4. Bancitaly went ahead 8 points on appreciation of its treasury certificates, and India Tire and Rubber jumped 10 points on reports that the Mohawk Rubber interests would join its management. A number of gains of 6 to 10 points were recorded, including Bullard Machine Tool, Carnation Milk, Monsanto Chemical, United Piece Dye, U. S. Foil "B" and U. S. Gypsum. Deere jumped 22 points in a small turnover.

Piggly Wiggly was most active of the chain stores, gaining 3 points in heavy transactions. Sanitary Groceries jumped 23 points to a new high, and Schiff common and preferred touched new tops in 6 and 24-point gains.

Public utilities were fairly active during the week, but prices persistently fluctuated, and most gains were not maintained. Midwest Utilities and Standard Power and Light made 6-point gains, and Penn Ohio Edison shares went up 2 and 3 points. There was a heavy turnover of Electric Bond and Share, which ranged between 112 and 117½ and closed fractionally higher.

Newmont led the mines with a 7-point gain, while Noranda gained more than a point in a turnover of about 650,000 shares. Roan Antelope also improved.

Oils were generally quiet and irregular, although they firmed up somewhat on Saturday. Gulf at one time dropped 4 points, but regained most of its loss. Standard of Kentucky made a gain of more than 2 points. Pipe lines were generally strong, Illinois jumping 23 points.

POLISH NATIONAL ALLIANCE PROGRESSIVE WING WINS

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The "progressive" faction of the Polish National Alliance has gained control of the organization. Their candidates are victorious over those of the "conservatives," in the election completed here.

The present session of the Alliance, the largest foreign language organization in the world, is a continuation of the 1927 regular triennial convention which ended in disagreement between the two factions who were fighting for control. Both groups called meetings and elected their own officers at the 1927 session.

J. Romaszkiewicz of Boston, Mass., defeated J. P. Mallek of Chicago for the presidency.

Other officers elected are: C. W. Sypniewski, Pittsburgh, Pa., cenzor; W. Cytacki, Detroit, Mich., vice-cenzor; F. P. Garbarek, Chicago, vice-president; M. Milewska, woman's vice-president; Casimir Kowalski, Milwaukee, general secretary.

Scranton, Pa., was chosen as the next convention city, in a vote between Scranton and Grand Rapids, Mich.

The newly-elected board of directors will conduct an investigation into alleged discrepancies in the accounts of two departments, it was announced.

MUSICIANS QUIT IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Three hundren outlying "neighborhood" motion picture theaters, it appeared today, would operate over the holiday, and perhaps indefinitely, without music as a result of the expiration of a wage contract between theater owners and the musicians' union.

Failure to agree on terms for a new contract caused the issuance of an "advisory statement" from the headquarters of the musicians' union. This was done after the unions' attorneys advised that if the men quit they would not violate an order issued Saturday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson enjoining the musicians' union from calling a strike.

The union officials obeyed the injunction by not calling a strike. But their formal statement outlined the opinion of Clarence Darrow and other attorneys that the men might quit work without running afoul of the restraining order.

GIRL TRACK STARS ENTER POLICE MEET

The best girl athletes in Western Pennsylvania will take part in the special events arranged for them at the tenth annual Bureau of Police field meet next Saturday at the University of Pittsburgh Stadium.

Among the fair athletes who will compete are the following: Leona Cantwell, Susan Voznak, Eleanor Colangelo, Mary Genzel, Ruth Conner, Mary Shedna, Anna Brock, Grace Wilde, McKees Rock; Tillie Richman, North Side; E. Vihes, Regina Woznak, Margaret Ader, Willa Laird, Olga Laird, Virginia Reese, Homestead Library; A. C. Grace Acheson, Pittsburgh; Annette Senik, Turtle Creek; Margaret Miller, East Pittsburgh; Jewel O'Hara, Munhall; Alice Lacy, Munhall; Mary Gomora, Turtle Creek, and Anna Kasunik, Wilmerding.

MOTOR TROUBLE HALTS HOP FROM PARIS TO N. Y.

International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Motor trouble which prevented their Bernard monoplane "yellow canary" from leaving the ground caused Adjutant Jean Assolant and Sergt. Rene Lefevre to abandon their plans to attempt to span the Atlantic by air today.

With beautiful flying weather prevailing, the youthful aviators started across the Le Bourget field in an attempted take-off at 6:30 o'clock this morning, but could not get the machine into the air. Examination revealed that the plane's 850 h. p. Hispano motor was not functioning properly and needed adjustment, before it could lift the plane's heavy fuel load.

Both fliers were much disappointed. Last week they were held up in their attempt by bad weather. They had planned to make the flight via the Azores.

64 TO SEEK SINGLES TITLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Sixty-four players, more than a third of them foreign entrants, begin their quest of the national single s tennis championship at Forest Hills a week from today.

Neither of last year's finalists are entered this year but the field does not lack for class.

Rene Lacoste, French automaton of the courts, who defeated Big Bill Tilden for the title in 1927 in straight sets, has elected to let his crown go by the boards. Business, he announced, would prevent his appearance in the United States this years. As for Tilden, his absence is by request. The executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association held that the Philadelphia veteran had violated the amateur rule of the association and barred him indefinitely from amateur tournaments staged under its auspices.

Of the 64 entrants, 23 hail from outside the United States. France, which has won the title for the last two years through the genius of Lacoste, presents a formidable front again with seven representatives headed by Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon.

KISSING CAUSES MORE DEATHS THAN AUTOS

LONDON—Branches of the Viennese League Against Kissing are to be established in London and other capitals. The league's proclamation which is to be translated into 17 languages contains this warning: "Every time that you delicately place lips against lips you absorb 40,000 microbes." It is further asserted that indiscriminate kissing causes more deaths than motor-car accidents.

SHOP LOOTED OF $150 IN SHOES

Boys' shoe valued at $150 and $12 cash were stolen by thieves who entered the Boot Shop, 6278 Frankstown avenue, by breaking open a skylight to gain entrance. The robbery was discovered this morning.

H. C. Engel, 3214 Central street, reported to the police that his auto had been stopped on a road near his home last night by three men, who forced him to hand over $125 and his gold watch.

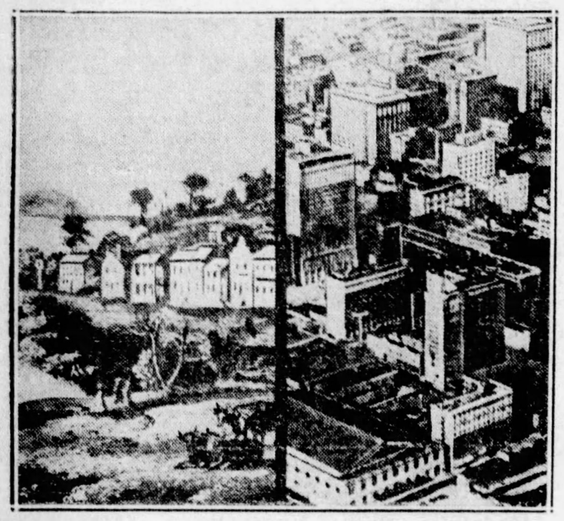
How This Country Grows!

PICTURES, Better Than WORDS, Make Us Realize It.



KANSAS CITY, MO., IN 1853

KANSAS CITY TODAY FROM AN AIRPLANE

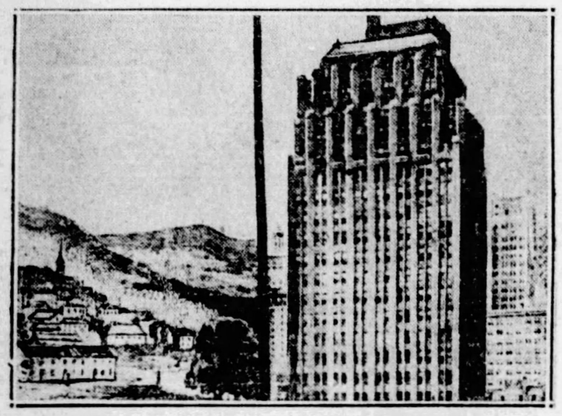
These two pictures are printed to emphasize the amazing growth of this gigantic country and its cities.

They are published also to emphasize, again, the fact that THE PICTURE IS THE GREAT EDUCATOR.

One picture can do more to impress the mind in a second than ten thousand words can do in a month.

The reason is simple. Our ancestors, human, semi-human, and NOT human, on this earth, for thousands of centuries, before language was developed, learned everything through the eye. Sharp sounds of danger, a low hissing, a rustling of leaves or branches, warned them through the ear. But the brain was unused to language.

That is why, today, what we see with the eye instantly reaches the brain. And a slight sound like the hiss of a snake or the crackling of a branch will startle and impress us more than the longest political speech.



HOUSTON ON THE CREEK IN 1825

HOUSTON, THE GREAT CITY OF SKYSCRAPERS, TODAY.

The moment you look at these two pictures, showing Kansas City, Mo., and Houston, Tex., with a line separating the city of years ago from the city of today, you realize how marvelously American cities have grown.

No need to give facts or figures. You see the Kansas City of 1853, and the Houston of 1825. And on the right of each picture you see the modern city.

The transformation is as clear to you as though you had read 10 volumes about Houston and Kansas City.

You know that the shores of the Missouri at Kansas City have changed from grassy banks or mud banks to docks and wharves. You know that railroad lines enter Houston and Kansas City from endless directions. You know that where there were farms in Kansas City, there are now gigantic packing houses, factories and office buildings.

You know that Houston is a city no longer of quiet, little houses and churches, but of gigantic skyscrapers.

In one lifetime the changes shown in these pictures have occurred. And in one glance your eyes see it all.

What will happen in the next lifetime, before this century ends?

Jesse H. Jones, described as the citizen dinosaur of Houston, has done much to promote that city as the late Col. Nelson had much to do with the development of Kansas City. In the old days he printed his little paper, and occasionally climbed up in his shirt sleeves from his basement shop on Delaware avenue to interview the son of some "Eastern Millionaire," the millionaire part usually imaginary.

And credit is due to old Col. Coates, with his good hotel on the West Side, and the cyclone cellar below to which he invited his guests when a yellow funnel-shaped cloud came down the Missouri.

This is a great country, much indebted to pioneers of other days, and to the hard workers of today.

Those workers of today will be pioneers of a hundred years hence.

May their work be as great and beneficial as that of their pioneer predecessors.

Everybody Is Sure

Why Not Two Presidents?

President Coolidge tells Senator Dale, of Vermont, that he, Coolidge, is confident of Hoover's election.

[illegible]alker, of New York City, back home after going Vest, leaping from peak to peak, like the wild 3SOLUTELY SURE that Gov. Smith will be

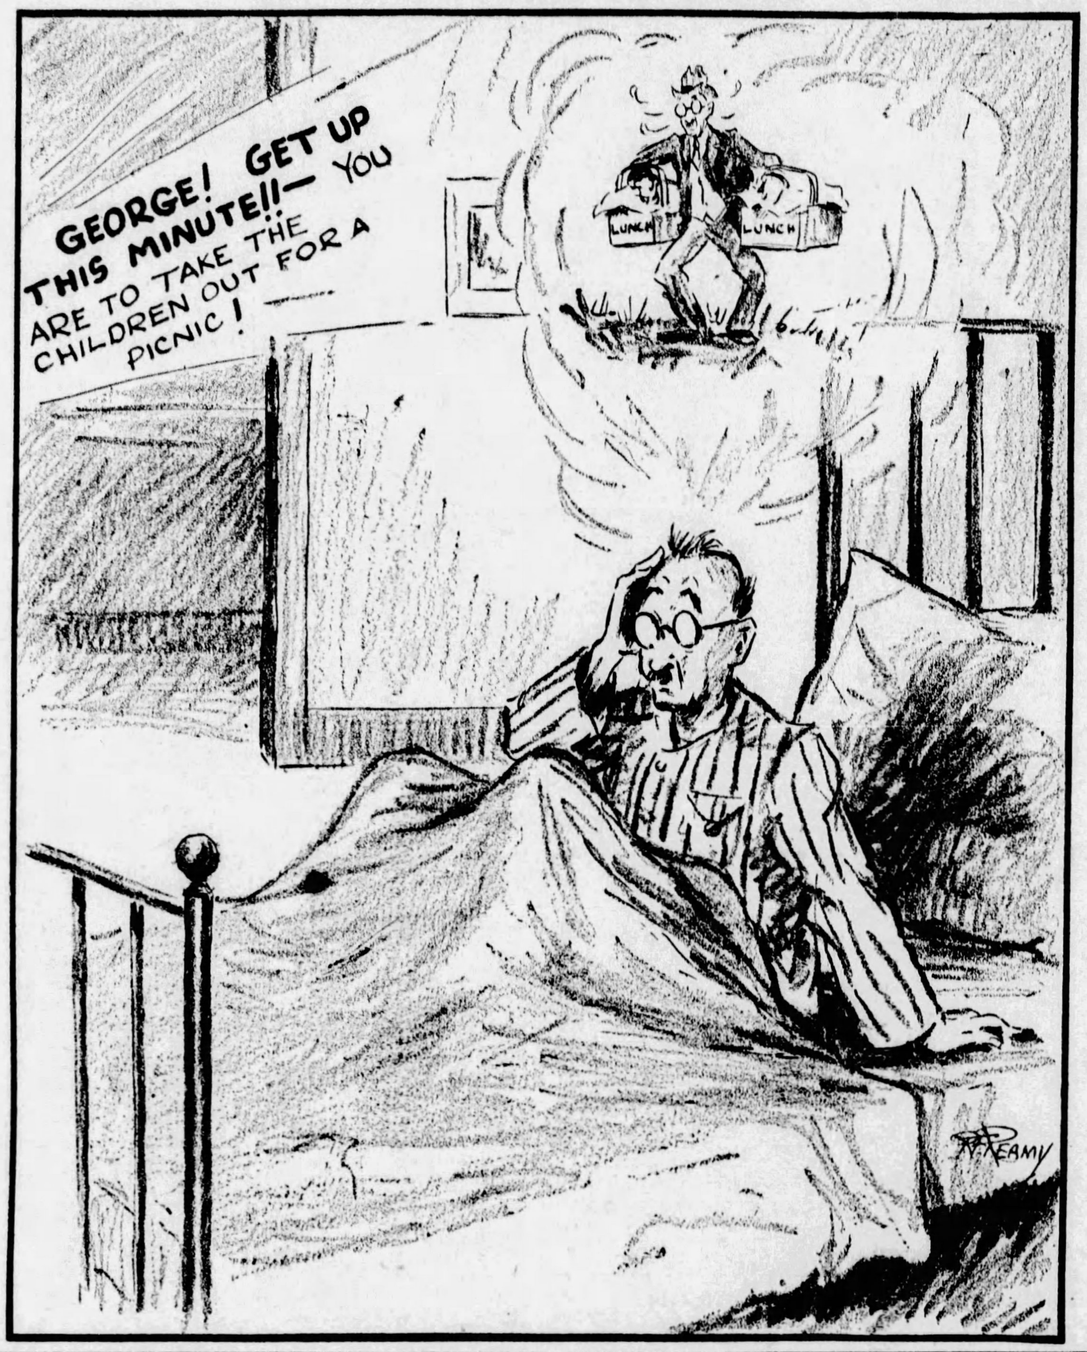
You can take your choice.

But you can also be sure of this: The betting will change considerably between now and election day. The "sure" man of today, and the "absolutely confident" man, will be "wondering" about October 1.

Judged by today's opinions, we'd have to have two Presidents.

One will win, and six years hence few will remember who the other was. For instance, who ran against Harding?

LABOR DAY



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Aurora Borealis

"I cannot find a theory which definitely states the cause of the aurora borealis (northern lights). Please state what theory the astronomers assume. I am sure many people would like to know it.—T., New York."

REMEMBER that there is an aurora australis (southern light) as well as an aurora borealis (northern light); also that both of these phenomena, separated by the diameter of the globe, center, respectively, around the opposite magnetic poles of the earth. This, in itself, is almost sufficient proof that the aurora is of electro-magnetic origin. A further proof is afforded by the fact that auroral displays are always accompanied by magnetic storms, sometimes of great severity.

But a word must be said about what we mean by a "magnetic storm." It is not a weather phenomenon like an ordinary storm, has no connection with thunderstorms, and is not confined to the atmosphere. It is a sudden and sometimes violent disturbance of the earth's magnetism, producing temporary changes in the direction and intensity of the lines of force in the earth's magnetic field. Sometimes when a magnetic storm is raging in the earth the direction of the compass needle will change rapidly several degrees. At such times, too, electric earth-currents manifest themselves, occasionally of sufficient strength to interfere with the transmission of telegraph and cable dispatches, while startling flames leap from the instruments.

But the most conspicuous visual phenomenon connected with a magnetic storm is the aurora, whose mysterious streamers, crowns and curtains, flickering, glowing and flushing over the northern sky, are often seen in the United States and Europe.

This brings us to the connection between the aurora and the state of the sun, which is proved by evidence similar to that which shows that the lights are of electro-magnetic origin. This evidence is of a coincidental character, for it rests mainly upon the fact that both auroras and magnetic storms vary in frequency and intensity with the periodical variations in the sun which are indicated by sunspots. During the maxima of sunspots auroras and magnetic storms are most frequent; during the minima of sunspots they are almost entirely absent.

The next question is, how is the influence of the disturbances in the sun transmitted to the earth? It must be by some form of variation, just as the energy that produces light and heat is transmitted. The hypothesis now generally accepted is that electrified corpuscles pass from the sun to the earth and upon entering the atmosphere at its higher levels, where it is very rare, produce there an illumination of a similar nature to that seen in a Geissler tube when a current of electrons passes through it. Owing to the fact that the earth is a magnet, with two magnetic poles between which the curving lines of force are formed, the electrons from the excited sun upon entering the earth's atmosphere, follow the lines of its magnetic field, and so the streamers of the aurora are seen centering about the magnetic poles. It has been shown that the lower ends of the streamers of the aurora are always at an altitude of about sixty miles. They are not seen in the denser part of the atmosphere at lower levels. The magnetic lines in the atmosphere curve around and descend to the earth in the regions surrounding the magnetic poles.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Do You Possess "It?"

YOU wonder what is the "it" which carries some folks along and causes them to be singled out in a crowd?

You have puzzled your head a lot as to what it might be.

It is easy for you to call it luck or a pull, but is it?

If you don't know better than to ask such a question, you haven't "it."

Persons who are asking that question are losing the valuable time required to exercise "it."

"It" is the spirit back of one's deeds and actions.

There is an element of genius in "it," for genius is explained to be the ability and habit of taking infinite pains or trouble to accomplish a result.

That means work, an ambition to attain, a confidence in self as a factor in success.

Personality, plus a spirit of carry on, these things imply "it."

Just plain hard work doesn't bring "it."

To have the "it" spirit without the ambition to turn it to a good purpose won't do you any good.

To have it in the rough without cultivating yourself is not worth while, for you must do enough to be noticed without thinking of being noticed.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Brothers All

WE can not, if we would, evade
The fact that common clay has made
All men, of high or low degree,
Priest, pauper, prince and you and me.
For strangely, when our souls are stirred
To simplest truth in thought and word,
Then most our speech and acts proclaim
How all our sources are the same;
A common hope, a kindred thought
Sets rank and training all at naught
And proves, conceal it as you will,
The brotherhood which binds us still.

Why Crime Grows

IT is instructive to note the causes of American increase in crime as explained in the address of the retiring president of the American Bar Association, Silas Hardy Strawn, of the "crime capital" of the United States, Chicago.

His explanations are: Better roads and high-powered automobiles for "getaways;" more wealth concentrated in the criminal classes and aiding them to buy fast motors and expensive guns; more money for criminals to spend buying political influence; delay in criminal processes and carelessness in selecting our judges and prosecutors; apathy of our best citizens towards jury duty; unrestricted traffic in firearms.

Great Passages from the Bible

A Prayer of Moses

(Psalm 90)

LORD, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations.

Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou are God.

Thou turnest man to destruction; and sayest, Return, ye children of men.

For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.

Thou carriest them away as with a flood; they are as a sleep: in the morning they are like grass which groweth up.

In the morning it flourisheth, and groweth up; in the evening it is cut down, and withereth.

For we are consumed by thine anger, and by thy wrath are we troubled.

Thou hast set our iniquities before thee, our secret sins in the light of thy countenance.

For all our days are passed away in thy wrath: we spend our years as a tale that is told.

The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labour and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away.

Who knoweth the power of thine anger? even according to thy fear, so is thy wrath.

So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.

Return, O Lord, how long? and let it repent thee concerning thy servants.

O satisfy us early with thy mercy; that we may rejoice and be glad all our days.

Make us glad according to the days wherein thou hast afflicted us, and the years wherein we have seen evil.

Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children.

And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

FOLKS get lots of funny ideas from watching the movies. There was a woman that was with her husband to see a motion picture in which many love scenes were shown. The woman was enthused by one particular scene, so she says, "John, that must be wonderful for a woman to be made love to like that. Strikes me you wouldn't be so bad at that sort of thing. Why don't you ever make love to me that way?"

"Say," he says, "I make my living plastering. That guy gets ten thousand a week for that, and time and a half for overtime."

Nothing But the Best

THERE had been a bathing accident. A woman had gone beyond her depth, and was in peril of drowning.

Happily some boatmen were at hand and they put off and rescued her just as she was on the point of going down for the third time.

Her husband was waiting anxiously on the shore as the little band of heroes laid the woman on the beach.

"Better apply artificial respiration," decided one of them.

"No! Most certainly not!" shrieked the husband. "She's all I have, and I want the real thing!"

Two Speeds and Reverse

A COLORED man employed to wash windows at a certain factory in Boston was working so moderately that his actions might very well be termed "slow motion."

"Why don't you hurry a little more?" demanded his superior.

"Boss, Ah has only two speeds and de other am slower than dis one."

O. O. McINTYRE

In Tia Juana

TIA JUANA, Sept. 3.—The magnificent new gambling casino here has inspired an unprecedented rush of customers across the Mexican border into this wild and rather lawless resort. The 12-mile stretch of dirt road from San Diego to Tia Juana is packed with cars moving snail-like all day long.

The trip often requires an hour. Thirsty Americans are leaving thousands here daily. Passing through customs at sundown, an inspector peered into the automobile and inquired: "Americans?" Some one replied: "We were when we came over." "Perhaps you are a little Scotch now," he cracked.

Tia Juana—which Americanized is Aunt Jane—is a glorified strip of the old Barbary Coast in hell-roaring days. Everything is here from a 25-cent tent cooch show to the $1,000 chip on the spin of the roulette wheel. There is a lot of the country fair atmosphere in its worldliness.

Those who have seen the imperious, imperturbable croupiers gracing the tables of the Sporting Club at Monte Carlo get a nice fat smile out of the croupiers here in the new casino. They are the broken-down gamblers of the cheaper gambling halls, drafted into service.

Wearing ill-fitting dress suits and hair roached back like the old-time corner saloon bartender, they attempt a sangfroid, but continue to talk out of the sides of their mouth and luxuriate the beneficent odor of barber shop cologne.

In their new setting they suggest a dock walloper in an opera box in the Diamond Circle at the Metropolitan. The new casino, however, in many ways rivals those at Deauville and other European resorts. The crowds have a fashionable look and the play is heavy.

Tia Juana's single main street with its open-fronted saloons—some have a dozen bartenders on duty—gaudy cafes, slot machine halls, quick photoshops and other fol de rol, is extremely picturesque. Comic little brown-skinned policemen flit about pompously and hopelessly trying to prevent traffic snarls and using great big American cuss words.

Tia Juana crowds offer a page from "Who's Who" in Hollywood. A group of big stars are here daily and, of course, there are the usual stories that many have mortgaged Spanish castles with flaming awnings and a patio to recoup heavy losses. So far as I could notice, however, they were all onlookers like myself. Movie stars are never very loose with their money.

The dog races in the mid-afternoon almost evacuate Tia Juana for a couple of hours. The betting is by Pari mutuel. There is a comic gravity in the way the dogs are led before the judge in his reviewing stand by jockeys in colorful costume. But a cruelty about the muzzled, half-starved looking dogs chasing the electric rabbit they will never catch. The dogs are muzzled because in their frenzy they will turn on each other and fight to the death. There are dog race addicts who study "past performances" as the race track followers do those of horses.

One of the sordid sides of Tia Juana is the number of young American girls already stamped with the indelible marks of a fast pace. Many are said to have been lured here in the same way "white slaves" are lured to Rio—by promises of theatrical and cabaret jobs. Instead they sit about cafes as "percentage girls," or promenade sidewalks for vicarious pickups. The traffic in drugs is said to be heavy, and among the first things the American girl is taught is their use. After that she rarely leaves. Americans are reputed to have "made" Tia Juana, and it is not an achievement of which they may be particularly proud.

Tia Juana presents the type of "tin horn sport" that passed in America with the saloon. They are about the bars with their flaming shirts, striped suits and huge paste diamond rings and tie studs, always willing to accept a drink but never to buy—and living off the earnings of women.

* * *

There are also many rough-neck bullies. One whose hair and eyebrows caressed kept shoving me out of the way at a gambling table. I suppose he saw me wetting my lips and swallowing hard for he stopped. Sometimes I think I don't know my own strength.

Labor Day

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

By making a holiday once in a year of Labor Day the government officially acknowledges that the basis of all our prosperity is labor.

We must not, however, understand by that only hand workers are laborers. Brain workers are even more important than manual laborers.

But human labor will always be essential. The most perfect locomotive needs an engineer and a fireman. The best machine still needs a machinist.

The cotton gin may do the work of any hand workers and the linotype and steam plow take away the jobs of many laborers, but every machine finds after all that a directing human intelligence is required to run it most effectively.

And it's a good thing morally. For a human being rapidly deteriorates if unemployed. Those who work constitute the moral element of every community. Every religious denomination I know of except one has originated among the working people, and I am not so infatuated with that one.

Nothing is so moral as work. A high grade worker is not nearly so liable to slump into sin as a marathon prayer.

What we need to keep us in good condition spiritually is not excess of goodness, but continual poise and normality.

The criminal classes of a country are the scum and the dregs. The great middle classes are the country's anchor.

Nothing is so menacing to character as to be out of a job.

We work hard to save up enough money so that in later years we may be idle. At the last we hope to be happy because we have nothing to do. But as a rule we are happier working to lay up a competence than we are after we've obtained the competence.

As a rule it has always seemed to me that the faces of laboring men as they come out of a factory after having done their day's work are pleasanter than the faces on the porch of a de luxe hotel at Palm Beach.

For there are all sorts of miseries in this world, but about the worst is ennui. There are all sorts of incentives to crime, but being bored is one of the most fruitful.

Somehow I think that Robert Louis Stevenson never said a better thing about himself than that he was never bored.

And what better remedy for boresomeness than having to get up when the alarm rings in the morning and work all day till you are tired?

The great trouble with the endowed and idle classes is that they do not understand the luxury of getting tired.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

SHE is a pretty little thing. Nifty, too. And the wife of a clever young artist who managed to save $17,000 and accumulate a car and a fine dog. She fell in love with another man and eloped, taking with her the entire $17,000, the car and the dog.

Then she wrote one of these sweet little notes, asking him to "be a good sport" and let her have a divorce.

He answered that he would if she would return the dog. It was the dog he missed most.

The lady got the divorce and married the lounge lizard.

She is through with the lizard now, and 10 to 1 she could appreciate the husband IF he would take her back. He says, "No, I won't—the idea!"

But when she phones him he almost crawls through the receiver, and if he misses a call he bawls out everybody in his office.

The bets are on.

A husband had a curious experience the other evening.

A friend of his wife, who had tried persistently to attract him, even to pawing him whenever she got close enough, visited them for the week-end.

After he retired he had a headache and got up to get some medicine. He overheard the two women talking. His wife called him "too stupid to flirt," and the other woman asked innumerable questions.

"And that," said the man, "is the most interesting experience I ever had. I didn't know either of those women before. No woman is ever quite herself when with men. Get two women together and you get the truth. It was a shock, and the most enlightening experience of my life."

Another man heard his wife, in the dark of night, telling another woman that she never had loved her husband, but married him because he loved her so much.

He pretended he was asleep, and refused to worry her by telling her what he heard.

"Nothing could be done about it anyway," he argued. "If she never loved me she wasn't likely to begin when I started scolding her."

No woman on earth could practice such repression.

One husband comments: "The women today are 'Dianas of the Chase'. They want the fun of landing their man and then they begin to look around for new game."

No woman will admit he is right, but a couple of them are sitting in an office debating that question, and one says:

"Well, women are made weak-willed, so that men can win them over. Otherwise, they wouldn't marry and raise families. Then if they are weak and can be won someone besides their husband is LIKELY to come along and try, and if he tries he is LIKELY to win. She may not want to be like that, but what can she do about it if the time, the place and the man are suitable and the husband is cruel?"

That's keyhole stuff, and, as the other man expressed it, "most enlightening."
